QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—Did you ever see an old horse, holler-eyed and pony, hint-legged and pur-blind, kivered with a gold-plated harniss and waited upon by a spruce postillion, and a livered coachman?

A.—Yes, I have, and I hav seen old age put on pomposity, hobble in brocade, command reverence, exile with pride, and grin with pain, and I hav sed tew myself "poor old hoss."

Q.—Did yu ever hear phools, and even wise men say, that life waz short, that deth waz surtain, that happiness waz skase?

A.—I hav herd these remarks quite often, but i never herd a bizzy man find enny fault with the length of life, nor a pure one regret that deth waz a sure thing, nor a vartuous one komplain about the high price ov happiness.

Q.—Is there enny vacancy at present for a — in polite sirkles, who didn't have a rich daddy, or who hadn't bored successfully for his himself?

A.—If we hear ov enny sutch opening we will telegraff you at once, but jist now, the way things are run, a man with seedy garments on would even get kicked out ov a fust-klass meeting house, and be put under 10 thousand doller bonds tew keep the pece. Our advice tew a poor, but virtuous individool, wood be to take his virtue under his arm, keep shady, and let the polite sirkles chew each other.

Q.—Kan a young man without enny mustach get a situashun in Nu York Sitty?

A.—Yes, but it would probably be in the station house. Yung men without puny mustach are looked upon with suspicion, and yu will find, if yu put them under oath, that they either kain't get ennything but common sense, or they are too stingy to buy a bottle ov "Bolivard's oil," warranted tew fetch hair, or tare oph the lip.

Q.—Kan you inform me the best way that haz yet been invented to bring up a boy?

A.—Give me 10 dollars and I will tell you. But here is a recipe that I giv away. Bring up your boy in fear ov the rod and a gin mill.

Q.—Is there enny kure for natral lazines, whare it is a part ov a man's constitushun and bye laws?

A.—Only one kure, that iz, milk a cow on the run, and subsist on the milk.

Q.—How fast dus sound travel?

A.—This depends a good deal upon the natur ov the noize yu are a talking about. The sound ov a dimer horn, for instance, travels half a mile in a sekond, while an invitashun tew git up in the morning i have known to be 3 quarters ov an hour going up two pear ov stairs, and then not hav strength enuff tew be heard.

Q.—Kan yu tell me who waz the author ov the saying "giv a beggar a hoss and he will ride tew the devil?"

A.—I don't feel equal to the task, but i will say one thing in favor ov the proverb, i konsider it a good risk tew take if yu think the devil would send back the hoss.

Q.—What is yure private opinion ov human happiness az a fertilizer?

A.—I hav got a prodful mean private opinyun ov human happiness, but all that i kan say for it is that it resembles a new pen ny hove in among a parcel of ragged yung urchanes, awl ov them are immediately crazy for the cent, but only one ov them gits it.

Q.—What kind ov books would yu advise a yung man like me tew read, who am very anxious tew be full ov wisdum?

A.—Don't read but one good book at a time, and az soon az yu git thru with that, keep a readin it over agin. He who reads everything iz like he who drinks everything, he gits az full az a soder fountain, with just about az much whizz in him. It iz better tew be a good deal like somebody than a little like nobodby.

Q.—If yu had a fust rate daughter would yu teach her musick?

A.—No! But if she had musick mutch, i wood hoe it and dig around it. A tallent for musick iz not one tew hanker after, unless it is a phatt one. I would rather a yung lady gal ov mine would have a genius for pitching cents at a rolling hub than tew be a third rate musicker.

Q.—How long kan a goose stand on one legg?

A.—Try it and see, that's the way the goose found out.

TAKE IT EASY.—A few days since Constable Judd was called upon to fulfill a writ of ejectment, issued by a son of the Emerald Isle against a fellow countryman. Dan, who never waits for persuasion to do his duty, instantly called on Pat, and found him seated in the house named in the writ, enjoying a "dudeen."

"Good morning, Pat," says Dan, pulling out his writ.

"The top o' the morning to yourself," replied Pat, undisturbed.

"Patrick, I have business with you," continued the constable.

"Bedad, and sure ye have, an' why would ye be afther calling on me, sir?"

"I have a writ here commanding me to eject you and your goods from this house. It's rather an unpleasant duty"—

"Ah! it is Michael O'Callighan that ordered ye, shure?"

"Yes, sir, Michael is the man."

"An' did he pay the costs, Misther Constable?"

"Certainly—we always demand advance costs in these cases."

"Thin ye've been paid for yer work, shure."

"Certainly."

"Thin ye can do it, divil a bit will Patrick O'Brien stan' in the way of a man's working for pay."

This rather astonished Dan, who had expected, as is usual in such cases, to meet with serious resistance. He doffed his coat, and after an hour's hard labor, succeeded in removing the Irishman's household goods into the street. After securing the house from improper intrusion, Dan, fatigued with the labors he had performed, started away. In bidding him good-by, Pat, who was seated on a part of his goods, with the "dudeen" still in his mouth, remarked:

"An' I'm obliged to ye, sir, for saving me all this trouble."

"How?"

"Faith, an' wasn't I going to move? an' wasn't I jist taking off my coat to lugout the duds, sir, whin you come an' carried 'em all down for me, without chargin me a pin, at all. I'm much obliged to ye, sir, an' hope ye'll call agin when Patrick O'Brien wants his goods carried down stairs, sir."

Dan suddenly had business in another place, though the joke was so good he could not help telling it afterward.

STRUCK THE WRONG MAN.—Dr. Lees, of England, a noted temperance advocate, hearing that liquor could not be had in Maine, came to this country almost solely to witness for himself the success of prohibitory legislation.

He put up at a hotel in Portland, and asked, not the "bar-keeper," but the "clerk," for a glass of brandy, stating that he was an Englishman, and at the same time putting down a gold dollar, and saying, "Never mind the change—I understand it." The clerk assured him that he could not have any, and that evening Dr. Lees walked four miles in vain to procure a glass of liquor. At last he met a working man in the street, and addressed him thus. "My friend, I am a stranger in town—I have been walking about four hours, to see if I can find anything to drink; can't you tell me where I can find something?" He replied, "No, I cannot, and if I could I wouldn't."

Non-Explosive Solar Gas.

A CHEAP and Superior Substitute for Kerosene. It has been rigidly tested, and pronounced perfectly non-explosive, in proof of which we would call the attention of the public to the following certificate:

20 State Street, Boston, Aug. 15, 1867.

This is to certify that I have tested a sample of E. L. BENNETT'S SOLAR GAS, and find it is a pure white carbon, having a specific gravity of .893. Its vapor is very dense, and will not mix with air and explosive proportions. It burns from the proper burner giving a BRILLIANT, SOFT, WHITE LIGHT, that is not so fatiguing to the eyes as that of Kerosene or Coal Gas. It is inflammable when brought in contact with fire, BUT IT IS NOT EXPLOSIVE.

THE AMERICAN COOKING STOVE.

ANOTHER PATENT SUIT.—We understand Messrs. Shear, Packard, & Co. have been compelled to commence a suit against Hunt & Miller, of Hudson, for infringing the patent on the Ash Sifter in the American Cooking Stove. This is the fifth suit they have been compelled to bring against different parties for infringing the different patents on this Stove. The previous suits have resulted favorably for S., P., & Co., and they are determined to follow up all cases of infringement until others cease from appropriating their improvements.—[Albany Evening Journal, July 28th, 1868.

All persons are cautioned against selling or using Stoves with a Shaking Ash Sifter in the hearth, or under the grate, as this improvement is fully secured to us by five different Patents, and all persons selling or using Stoves with this improvement, will be liable to prosecution for infringement, as we have granted no licenses to other parties to make or sell this improvement, and all infringements will be promptly prosecuted.
