THE NEWS IN NEARBY TOWNS

Stanley

—Certified seed accomplishes many good things for the potato grower. Frank Cammett, of Stanley has discovered. A yield this year of 1652 bushels from six acres is an example, he says. During his years in this work, he has had higher yields from small fields, but regards this as an excellent proof of what can be accomplished with good seed and proper care. Mr. Cammett says that certified seed is the first step. Then he chooses clover sod to plow under. Manure is used freely aided with a 16 per cent phosphorous acid preparation. The ground is worked to at least eight inches in depth and level cultivation is practiced.

—Seneca Grange No. 284, will meet in Washburn's hall, Saturday, Dec. 1st., at noon. An oyster dinner will be served, followed by the election of officers for the year.

Hypolite Corners

(Too late for insertion last week)

—Last Saturday evening, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gorton gave them a variety shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. DeWicks, guests were present from Middlesex, Rushville, Penn Yan and West Italy. The dining room decorations were of yellow and pink; the large bay window in the living room was pretty in decorations of red and gold with a seat for two and there the bridal pair sat, as they were presented with many handsome gifts brought to them by two little maids who carried them in a basket.

Refreshments were served to about 85.

CARD OF THANKS

To those so kindly in the bereavement of Husband, Father and Brother, George B. Wheeler, whom we laid away November 21st, in earth's long resting place:

His hopewas firm in God, who in exchange from eath to gladness he left a vacant chair, which tells its story of sadness
Dead voices answer across the valley of snow
To the living as home to meet our own we go.

W. E. W.

The call S O S, used by ships at sea as a distress call, is purely arbitrary in its grouping of letters and was chosen because of the unusual combination of dots and dashes which make it distinctive above all other calls. It consists of three dots, space, three dashes, space and three more dots.

Old Fashioned Flowers

The old-fashioned flowers seem sweetest to me,
For some fancied reason or other—
In each fragrant petal there's something I see
That always reminds me of Mother.
The memory it brings me is winsomely sweet,
A mem'ry that never shall perish—
And in it the two of us smilingly meet—
A love-laden mem'ry I cherish.

We stroll through the garden, and stop here and there,
Admiring the colorful splendor
Of flowers she's planted and nurtured with care,
With hands that were loving and tender
We stop at the roses and chat for a while—
She tells me how sweetly they're scented,
And there 'midst the flowers our hearts are a-smile;
How happy are we, and contented.

And here are the zinnias, the dahlias, and phlox
The sun flowers, nodding and lazy,
And threading among them are neat little walks—
And there is an old-fashioned daisy!
And now as we're leaving the garden, I find,
For some fancied reason or other—
The old-fashioned flowers seem gentle and kind,
And always remind me of Mother.

Good Roads

Traffic laws which differ in different State and different towns in the same State, are a cause of confusion, accident, loss of property, and loss of life. Uniform traffic laws, the same the country over, will promote safety.

The objection urged against uniform traffic laws that traffic conditions are different in different localities, does not hold in the face of the obvious power of the locality to modify or add to the unifom law for special conditions. There are many observances which, made uniform, would make for safety, such as the system of signalling for a stop, slow up and turn, a uniform rule as to right of way at crossings, safety procedure at grade crossings ,a heavy penalty for such dangerous practices as passing another car when coming to a curve or top of a hill, etc.

With forty-eight States and thousands of municipalities, all making their own traffic rules, the motorists is more or less at sea as to what he can and can not, should or should not do. But when the National Government builds roads for the Nation, a national traffic law will be inevitable as a national police force for the national highways.

"A paved United States in our day" is not only devoutly to be wished for, because of the material benefits it will bring, but because of the safety for uniformity of traffic rules will provide, when the Congress authorizes a system of national highways which will serve all the States as a good State highway system now serves all the counties in that State.

Fined for Using Ferrets

Four Rochester hunters were arrested by game protectors for taking rabbits with ferrets and paid $50 each for their day's sport.

The use of ferrets in taking rabbits is at all times prohibited by the Conservation law except that the Conservation Commission may, be resolution, permit ferrets to be used in certain counties but no such permission has been given in any county for several years.

The taking of rabbits with ferrets is brutal and unsportsmanlike and the unrestricted use of ferrets would result in the extermination of the rabbits. Where the ferret is used the rabbit has no chance. If he leaves his burrow, he will be shot or knocked on the head by the hunter at the entrance while if the ferret gets him he will be killed and the hunter may not be able to get him If there are several rabbits in the burrow the ferret will not stop until he has killed them all.

This and That

An old lady kept a parrot which was always swearing. She could put up with this till Saturday, but on Sunday she kept a cover over the cage—this prevented the parrot from swearing on that day—reomving it on Monday morning.

One Monday afternoon she saw her minister coming toward her house, so she again placed the cover over in ecage. As the reverand gentleman was about to step into the parlor the parrot remarked:

"This has been a damn short week!"

Transfers Officer

Due to the fact that the full quota of enlistments in the U. S. Navy having been reached, Recruiting Forces have been reduced to the normal standard.

On July 1st, of this year the Navy was 3,700 short of 36,000 or full strength with a greater possible shortage in the near future in ivew of the fact that a large number of enlistments were about to expire.

The Navy Recruiting Bureau with this seeming immense shortage in sight launched a campaign for recruits calling for men out of the Regular Service and establishing a policy of placing men in their home town or near as possible to their nativity.

This is why the Navy Recruiting Officer, Chief Electrican Fred N. Stannard, of Canandaigua, was assigned to this section, who at the time of the assignment was serving abroad the U. S. S. New York in the Navy Yard Bremerton. Wash.

Recruiting for a couple years back has been operated on a Salesmanship basis, each Navy Representive being classed as a Canvasser. During this time Stannard sold the Navy to 46 applicants, ten of which passed by doctors in the physical test and sworn into the service. This totaled the sales accounts of Stannard's 16 weeks activities.

And due to this reduction of the Recruiting Force, Stannard has been transferred to the Electrical School Hampton Roads, Virginia, where he will act in the capacity of an instructor, as he is a graduate of the Int. Cor. Schools, and numerous other Government courses.

Country Weekly

With all that has been written on the subject of the country neswspaper, it is curious that only recently has attention been called to the fact that one of the most loved American poets years ago paid a tribute to the country weekly, which, for color and vividness, perhaps has not been excelled by any of the modern writers.

Possibly it is because this little poem forms a part of Whittier's longer poem, "Snowbound" that it has escaped so long special attention on the part of persons interested in the country newspaper.

Just who is entitled to credit for bringing the poem to light is hard to say; it is several weeks now since it first began appearing in the exchanges. The poem follows:

At last the floundering carrier bore
The village paper to our door.
Lo! brodening outward as we read
To warmer zones th' horizon spread,
In panoramic length unrolled
We saw the marvels that it told.
Welcome to us its week-old news,
Its corner for the rustic Muse,
Its monthly gauge of snow and rain,
Its record mingling in a breath
The wedding bell and dirge of death;
Jest, anecdote, and love-lorn tale,
The lastest culprit sent to jail;
Its hue and cry of stolen and lost,
And traffic calling loud for gain.
We felt the stir of hall and street,
The pulse of life that round us beat;
The chill embargo of the snow
Was melted in the genial glow;
Wide swung again our ice-locked door,
And all the world was ours once more.
