Still having nice summer weather. I am thankful that the humidity seems to be easing up finaly.

Hayfields almost empty
It seems good to finally see the hayfields. I am not sure how much of it turned due to the strange weather.

The cornfields are doing fairly well regardless of all the rain and lack of sunny days for the growing season. I have found local gardens is going well. There is nothing like fresh-picked local corn, but the hayfields red eye you find in some stores - you definitely need to get your hay fresh.

New bridge coming along
It looks like that new bridge that is being built in Waite on County Route 1 is coming along nicely. It will be ready for use before September, when the school buses will be running.

Am busy party planning
My daughter, Karen, and I have been busy planning our upcoming 80th birthday party for Sept. 19. We are building up to our party weekend in the Park after the party. She made the neatest invitations for the party given by our friend.

Horses, most of my family will make it this time. Several of my family members would not have come to the last party, due to Sept. 19.

While Karen and Mark's lovely home, I had a chance to see their bedroom window in the livingroom which was removed. They love living lout in the bay but the other one even try it for some reason. It's a great place to watch the birds and roaming guppo ques.
