NOT AFRAID OR TRUTH

Christianity welcomes truth from what ever source it comes, and is not afraid that any real truth from any source can interfere with the divine truth that comes by inspiration from God Himself. It is not scientific truth to which Christians object, for true science is classified knowledge, and nothing therefore can be scientific unless it is true.—William J. Bryan.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

W. J. Pattison, general manager of the Scranton (Pa.) Sun, says:

Why do most advertisers, as business conditions slump and become depressed, immediately curtail their advertising appropriation?

The man who thinks matters through and looks ahead will at such times either increase his appropriation, or at least will not cut it.

Advertising at all times is good, but it is more effective when competitors are inactive.

The business of a man who advertises liberally during a depressed period is better during that period because of it, and when business conditions begin to improve he usually comes back two or three months in advance of his non, or curtailed, advertising competitor.

A False Premise

The theory on the part of many merchants that when business falls off it is useless to advertise is false. The engineer, when the engine is running at full speed does not put on more fuel until it shows signs of slowing up, and so it is with advertising.

If an advertising appropriation must be cut, do it when business is booming, but never cut it when business is dull.

All publications should preach this doctrine, not for the benefit in dollars and cents which may come to them, but for the benefit to the merchant and the community at laarge.

CANADA PROTEST FIRING ON MOTOR SHIP

Halifax, Sept. 19—A story of the shelling of a Canadian motorship by a United States coast guard cutter off New York was told today and confirmed in part in Washington, and within several hours counsel had been engaged to file formal protest to the Canadian government.

After Capt. John McLeod of the Nova Scotian ship Shawnee brought his vessel into port bearing the scars of two shells, announcement was made that a local law firm had been retained to act for McLeod before the authorities at Ottawa. Meanwhile in Washington the headquarters of the coast guard, said the Shawnee had been shelled, but the coast guard statement was at variance with McLeod's date of the encounter that no warning to stop had been given.

Coast guard boat No. 145, came up on the Shawnee 26 miles off New York last Friday night, and approaching with all lights out to within ten yards of the Canadia craft, fire five four-pound shots without warning. Two shots hit, one piercing the stern port quarter and the other striking the rail on the wheelhouse, the Shawnee's crew of six escaped injury.

Boys, Four and Six, Face Charges of Manslaughter

Paterson, N. J., Sept. 19—Two small, scared looking boys, said by their father to be four and six years old, faced Recorder Joelson in police court today on a charge of manslaughter.

The boys, Thomas and Julius Florillo, are accused by Mrs. Vita Lopresta, of having caused the death of her son, Frank, five years old, by kicking him in the abdomen.

So unusual is the cause, however, in view of the extreme youth of the defendants, the authorities are frankly puzzled as to what to do with them.

The boys were parolled in custody of their father, subject to be called when wanted. Whether the case will go to the grand jury or to the juvenile court is yet to be determined.

The alleged crime took place August 24th, according to Mrs. Lopresta's complaint, on the playground of St. Anthony's Parochial School. Thomas and Julius are charged with kicking Frank in the stomach. The child died four days later.

BROOKLAWN ADOPTS A FEW RULES

Camden, N. J., Sept. 19—Just what has been going on among the 500 residents of Brooklawn, a town ten miles from here, was not divulged, but the borough council found it expedient to pass a new ordinance, some of the more striking features of which are

The pleasure of burning bridges is to be denied all residents.

Nude walking will not be permitted in the street.

Breaking windows and throwing snowballs are prohibited.

If a citizen's horse dies it will not be permitted to lie on the sidewalk.

Women cannot wear men's clothing, or vice versa.

Feed Grain Crops Scarce in State

The outstanding features of the feed situation, as revealed in the state-federal crop report for September issued from the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets, are the very bad condition of pastures, the poor yields of feed grains, and the fairly good crop of hay. Conditions of pasture, though poor, are relatively best in northern and central counties; from Seneca Lake westward, as well as along the Pennsylvania border and up through the Hudson valley, they are very poor indeed. Dry weather during July and August was the reason.

These poor conditions follow pasture shortage throughout part of July and all of August, and many farmers are feeding their dairy cattle nearly as heavily on grain and hay as would be necessary in mid-winter. In addition to the shortage of regular pastures, dry weather has so retarded second growth on meadows that, in most sections, these are negligible as a source of feed. Pasture conditions are also poor throughout most of the United States.

The oats crop which suffered from a wet spring was caught by the dry summer weather and the expected outturn is 24,745,000 bushels compared with 35,660,000 bushels last year and 34,555,000, the five-year average. Barley is forecast at 3,938,000 bushels compared with 4,648,000 in 1928 and 4,850,000, the average of the previous five years. Corn, of which only part is husked, promises slightly more than last year, on an increased acreage. In central New York the growth is excellent. In other sections it is not so good. New York farmers also purchase much grain and concentrated feeds from other states.

The hay crop, fortunately, made generally excellent growth; and while there are some local shortages, the crop of 6,244,000 tons compares with 6,439,000 last year and the five-year average of 6,891,000 tons. Second cuttings will be much less than usual. More hay is being fed than usual to supplement the poor pastures, which will have the effect of reducing the supply for winter use.

The national crop of corn, subject to some improvement if the fall is unusually favorable, is forecast at 13 per cent less than last year; wheat, winter and spring, together, is 13 per cent below last season; oats, 17 per cent less; barley, 15 per cent less; buckwheat, 5 per cent less; flaxseed, 12 per cent less; grain sorghums, 35 per cent less.

KENTUCKY GOVERNOR AND OTHERS ARE INDICTED

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19— Gov. Clem D. Sampson and seven members of the state textbook commission were indicted today by the Franklin county grand jury on a charge of receiving gifts from publishers of textbooks.

The textbook commissioners named in the indictments were Frank V. McChesney, K. R. Cummins, Sam Walker, W. R. McCoy, Miss Delphia Evans, Robert J. Nickel and Mrs. George R. Smith.

The indictments followed an investigation covering a period of almost three weeks in the course of which representatives of several text book companies and members of the commission were before the grand jury.

The indictments charge that the eight persons accused "unlawfully, knowingly and wilfully" received money from publishers of text books while serving as members of the commission.

Bond for the governor and the commissioners was set at $250 and no date of trial was fixed.

Buffalo Endurance Plane Forced to Land Last Night

Buffalo, Sept. 19—A spectacular piece of repair work on the tail of speeding endurance plane went for naught this afternoon, wiped out by the heavy nozzle of refueling hose.

The Buffalo Evening News plane, which has been seeking a new endurance record for the city, landed at the Buffalo Airport shortly before 7 o'clock with a hole torn in the fuselage and the control wires weakened by becoming tangled in the hose and nozzle let down by a refueling ship from above. With the flop of the plane, Buffalo's hopes of a new flight record were dashed.

The stabilizer went bad on the Stinson-Detroiter monoplane a couple days ago. A wire support loosened after battling a windstorm of the night before. Yesterday and today the fliers proceeded without the stabilizer, although it necessitated constant viligance.

This afternoon a mechanic climbed up a rope ladder lowered from the endurance plane to an open cockpit craft flying below and scrambled out on the tail of the Evening News to repair the stabilizer. In two hours the job was done—a job that makes history by the way—and the mechanic, Dale Dryer, a stunt man and acrobat, jumped off, opened a parachute and landed safely.

Shortly afterward, the refueling ship went aloft to give the endurance craft its evening tap. The hose and nozzle became fouled in the rigging, and sick at heart, Pilots Jack Little and Merle A. Moultrup landed their craft. It had been in the air more than a week, 197½ hours, not quite half the time needed to equal the present record of 420 hours.

IRELAND SHUTS UP MANY PRISONS

Dublin, Sept. 17.—The Irish Free State, having turned most of its swords into ploughshares and military barracks into dwellings, is now shutting up prisons or using them as broadcasting stations.

The famous Kilkenny prison was closed some time ago, and now the historic jail of Kilmainham is no longer to be used as a prison.

While word comes from the United States that the prison population there is constantly on the increase with bigger and bigger prisons always needed, the convict population of the Saorstat has dwindled from 1,350 in 1914 to 700 at present.

Seven prisons now suffice for all the adult prisoners in the State.
