Rosary Hill allowed to build third floor

By SUEAN STONIN

Rosary Hill School, which is planned to be a hospital for automobile accidents, will be able to build a third floor if it is approved by the Zoning Board of Adjustment.

The proposal was to build a third floor because most of the lots in the neighborhood had been sold and the school needed more space.

The Zoning Board of Adjustment, after hearing the case, decided that the proposal was consistent with the regulations. The decision was made because the school was being built on the required 100 by 100 lots because most of the lots in the neighborhood had been sold.

Mr. Clark said the contractor on the uninsured pieces, who wished to build two houses, was granted a variance which would have been denied if the school had not been able to build a third floor.

The variance was granted by the owner, but Mr. Pfister, chairman of the Zoning Board, said that even if the variance had been denied, it would have been a minor setback variance. It was not a major variance because the owner had a right to divide their property.
