Charges Against State Treasurer Maxwell.

ALBANY, March 24.—The Albany correspondent of the New York Herald, sends the following to his paper: "The Albany republican papers have made several more or less covert assaults upon State Treasurer Maxwell since he called public attention to the fact that the two republican clerks of the Legislature had taken advantage of an unforeseen technicality in the law to draw double pay for their work during the deadlock. This afternoon a more open and serious attack is made upon him, with the countenance, as it would appear, of Comptroller Davenport. It is asserted that the Comptroller wrote a letter to Mr. Maxwell calling him severely to account for depositing an undue amount of the public funds in one of the Albany banks. To this the State Treasurer responded no less sharply, stating that his action was entirely according to the law and did not need defence; but on the text of the Comptroller's letter the Albany Journal seeks to make it appear that the Treasurer had been guilty of a serious offence. Whatever may be the facts the attack is undoubtedly due to a desire to break the effect of Mr. Maxwell's very proper exposure of this indecent raid upon the Treasury by Messrs. Vrooman and Johnson. It cannot have this effect. While these two officials can exact the money on a forced construction of the law the fact that they demand it in the face of all equity and propriety must stand against them, whatever may be the ground of any assaults on the Treasurer, who in the course of his duty, exposed the shameful contrivance. It is not to the credit of Mr. Davenport that he passed the matter in silence, and if, as Mr. Maxwell asserts, there was no ground for Mr. Davenport's criticism of today, it will be still less to his credit that he has sought to impeach Mr. Maxwell's honesty for the evident reason that the Treasurer did what the Comptroller failed to do. Meanwhile the two republican clerks have been paid and still retain some $2,000 to which they had no claim in justice.

An Old Newspaper.

Jacob Baker has handed to the News a copy of "The New Hampshire Post and Grafton and Coos Advertiser," dated Haverhill, Wednesday morning, March 24, 1830, which is quite a curiosity. It is a six column folio, well printed and well preserved. It contains but few advertisements, but has several favors from correspondents and a few news items. It was printed just fifty-two years ago to-day and a striking illustration of the advance and progress in the mode of crossing the great waters is shown by the following paragraph which appeared at the head of the column of "foreign intelligence": "London advices to 2d February have been received in New York." This morning, we have yesterday's news in London.

Attica Center's Elopement.

Archibald Prentice, of Attica, who disappeared suddenly a few days since, taking another man's wife with him, writes home from Kingston, Ill., that he went west to take up a farm of 100 acres, hoping to be able thereby to pay his debts and that he hired Mrs. Williams to assist in working the farm, which agreement was mutual between himself and wife.

McCARTHY HANGED.

The Execution at Angelica this Morning.

(Special to the News.)

ANGELICA, N. Y., March 24.—Jack McCarthy, who stabbed Patrick Markey at Richburg, last November, was hanged in the jail yard here to-day in the presence of a few spectators. McCarthy stood the ordeal well. The execution occurred a few moments before 12 o'clock.

His Last Day on Earth.

Angelica was well filled with strangers yesterday to witness the execution of Jack McCarthy, to take place to-day. An immense crowd of drillers, tool-dressers, and roughs was expected from the Allegany field, but they did not put in an appearance. The mother, sister, and youngest brother of the doomed man bade him farewell yesterday afternoon. The parting was affecting in the extreme. One brother, Joseph, arrived yesterday, and will remain until after the hanging, when he will take the remains to Corry for interment. Mr. Potter of Corry, an uncle of Jack, and his wife came Monday and went away yesterday. Tuesday evening Mrs. Potter, as she was leaving the jail, offered the night watch, A. R. Stone, $1,000 if he would remove the chains from Jack and let him get one foot outside the door. Then they might shoot him down if they thought best. The offer was refused and the sheriff informed. The result is that Jack was more closely watched than ever, two men being constantly with him.

Letchworth Rifles Disbanded.

A press dispatch says the Letchworth rifles, Captain Abraham B. Lawrence commanding, of Warsaw, which has achieved such an enviable state reputation, were officially disbanded yesterday, by W. G. Burton of the ordnance department of the state of New York. Sixty-seven men received discharges. The disbanding officer said the equipments of the company were in the most soldierly condition of any he had ever seen. The interior arrangements of the armory should be a model to those companies who pride themselves on being crack organizations in the state. The greatest harmony seemed to exist between the men and officers.

RUDAWAY.

A team of horses belonging to D. A. McDonald and attached to a lumber wagon, became frightened by the cars on Liberty street yesterday afternoon and got away from the driver. They run furiously up Liberty street to Main where they struck some trees in front of the residence of M. H. Bierce and were secured. The wagon was badly damaged and the horses were considerably injured. They were cut severely in the legs, and will no doubt be lamed for several days.

A Modest Individual.

The editor was sitting in his sanctum, when a man laboring under considerable apparent excitement walked in with a paper in his hand, and, pointing to a small paragraph, read: "The genial Colonel Mumblechock thinks of taking an eastern journey soon. May he enjoy a pleasant trip is the wish of his many friends."

"Now, sir," said the excited man, "I am Colonel Mumblechock, and I have called to inquire by what authority you make this use of my name in your paper?"

"First time I ever saw it," replied the editor, glancing at the item, "but I suppose it is all right, my local reporter is quite enterprising in pursuit of the news."

"But I never gave him permission to use my name in this manner," persisted the colonel.

"Very likely," said the editor. "But you are going east, ain't you?"

"Certainly."

"And you haven't any objection to your friends wishing you a pleasant trip?"

"That's all right, but I don't want my name in the paper, and in the future you will oblige me by leaving it out."

"Of course," said the editor, "if you desire it," and the Colonel bowed himself stiffly out.

"John," said the editor to his office boy, "follow that man and see where he goes, and come back and report."

John did as he was requested, and shortly after he came back and reported that Colonel Mumblechock went to the counting-room and bought twenty-five papers, which, after marking something in them, he ordered put in wrappers, and was busy in directing them.

Pretty but Vulgar.

Very few prettier girls have I ever seen than one who sat near me an evening not long ago at a table d'hote at the Continental, Philadelphia. The loveliest of auburn hair beautiful features, smallest of mouths, and prettiest of teeth—all combined to make her exceedingly attractive. Turning to a queer-looking little old lady at her side she suddenly exclaimed: "Oh, ma, ain't them mince pies beastly?"—New York Mail.
