MORNING EXPRESS

The Democratic Party as Studied in the North by a Paroled Rebel.

[From the Richmond Examiner, Jan 13.]

[This is from the pen of Mr. E. A. Pollard, the editor, who has just been exchanged.]

There has been so much said of a certain peace party, or a certain element of conservatism in the North with regard to the war, that something written on the subject by one who has had the benefit of recent personal observation in the North, so far as it gives a fresh and original interest to the subject, may not be considered as misplaced in the columns of the Examiner. The writer is quite sure that it is impossible to understand the present state of political parties at the North from any reference to the divisions in past Presidential campaigns, as all party changes in the North may be said to be constantly accommodating themselves to the course of military events, so little is there of virtue or of principle in the public opinion of the Yankees. Since the Chicago Convention the peace party varies inversely with the scale of military success, and as that has mounted in Northern opinion it has fallen until it at last approaches zero. No doubt can rest in history that at the time of the Chicago Convention the Democratic party in the North had prepared a secret programme of operations, the final and inevitable conclusion of which was the acknowledgment of the independence of the Southern Confederacy. It was proposed to get to this conclusion by distinct and successive steps, so as not to alarm too much the Union sentiment of the country. The first step was to be the proposition of the Union as it was in a Convention of States. If that was voted down, then the proposition of a new principle of federation, limited to foreign relations and to revenue. If that were rejected, then the proposition of an inter-confederate union to preserve as far as possible, by an extraordinary league, the American prestige; and if all these propositions, intended as successive tests of the spirit of the South, were to fail, then at last the independence of the Confederate States, marking time, as it were, was to be conceded by the Democratic party of the North. When their choice could no longer hesitate, it will be seen from this sketch of the programme that the design of the Democratic party was to get the North on the naked issue of war and separation. The plan, as we all know, utterly failed in its execution. The fall of Atlanta gave new lease to the war, and aside from that event it would have fallen through from the incoherence of the material, which at that time composed the Democratic party. In fact, like all other Yankee minorities, it went to pieces and was swallowed up in the Presidential election, and may be said to have practically disappeared since then from the political arena, where, if it shows itself at all, it is only in mock combat. It was only necessary to observe, as the writer did, the drama of the Presidential campaign in that city of immense sensations, New York, to get directly before one's eyes the peculiar and unparalleled cowardice and subserviency of the Yankees in his parties and his political organizations. Some days before the election New York was incandescent with revolution. Processions daubed banners and gasbeard through the streets spattered with what was in the Washington definition downright treason.

The hotels and bar rooms were choked with scowls—vociferous, defiant, and generally half drunk. Yet when Butler came all this clamor and show left the stage as suddenly as one of Butler's specialties, if not like it in flash of brimstone, and to one week's time most whose mouths had been filled with the most revolting, and words had been breathing fire and slaughter, were as quiet as whipped curs, and not a whit more dangerous. Of course the Yankee papers interpreted this exhibition of cowardly submission as a virtuous and magnificent quiescence in the will of the majority—a triumph of republican institutions, and all that sort of nonsense, and what was actually a display of the wretched lumbering of Yankee mimicries, was put before the world by the effrontery of the New York Herald and the ignorance of Professor Goldwin Smith as the sublime spectacle of patriotic self negation and infinitesimal virtue in Yankee politics. The writer has asserted that there is little very little left of any peace party in the North at the present time. It is necessary to distinguish the remnant of that organization from certain other sentiments in the North with which it has been frequently confounded.

Those people of the North who sympathize with the South, or affect any consideration for it, may be conveniently divided into three classes. First, we may enumerate the so-called War Democrats. They affect great virtue on account of their opposition to Abraham Lincoln, but are quite an hideoter upon the issues of peace. All they have ever said upon the termination of the war being nothing more than a whine of hypocrisy, as from time to time the military successes of the Confederacy have extorted it, while playing their part against Abraham Lincoln, in which, in fact, they have no higher aim than partisan offices or public plunder. They attempt a popular compensation for this by pretending a virtuous attachment to the Constitution and Union, occasionally throwing into their opinions a little spice of blackguardism about the extreme men in the Confederacy. These opinions are well exemplified in that famous sheet the New York World, and that nose of wax, McClellan. We will find the editor of this paper one day emptying his pot of filth on Mr. Lincoln, and the next day making a sort of popular amends and squaring his accounts with the vulgar, by low flings at the South and a style of double entendre that shows a wonderful proficiency in his blackguard scholarship. The life of this party is equivocation. The writer was told that the editor of the World was at the bottom a peace man, but had found it necessary for the influence of his paper to use the pretense of—constitutional Union—to catch the fools who believed in the possibility of any such thing—an example not only of Yankee newspaper morals, but a damning evidence of the incoherence and rottenness of the so-called Democratic party in the North, which finds such base equivocation necessary to sustain it. In the second class of Southern sympathizers we may place that large number of persons in the North who persistently deny the right and policy of secession, but who feel for the people of the Confederacy when they read of their poverty and suffering, and think they have been too terribly punished for their error. This sympathy is purely sentimental and is quite worthless. It abounds in the parlors of New York. There are numbers of people in the North—ladies who have not unsexed themselves, and men who have not sold their responsibilities to the demon of faction—who are horrified and indignant at the cruelties of the war, and who pity our exiled women and houseless little children, but they will not admit the justice of the Confederate cause, and concede nothing to, us but vague and fruitless commiseration. It is very easy to sit in a cushioned chair, with a foul stomach, and sympathize. The South does not want such sentimentalism. She asks for her justification in the eyes of God and man, and disdains the pity that, denying it, offers a comfort that dishonors her. She will be content with no abridgement of her right. She has no claim on mawkish charities, no beggar's plea for the half-pence and broken dishes of northern philanthropy. In the third place, we come to the peace party proper—in the North. It is composed of those who think that the war is essentially a crime and an outrage; that amelioration of it will not do; that it is quite as much in the interest of the North as of the South to stop it; that the South represents in it her constitutional rights, the traditions of the past and the whole cause of American liberty, and that in the defeat of the confederate arms must go down the liberty of the North along with the independence of the South. Such intelligent sympathy is of real value to the South, but the party which goes so far is much weaker in numbers than is generally supposed by the Confederate people, and may be counted by hundreds, while the other classes who all come by very violent connection under the common watchword of "Secesh" number thousands. It is especially represented by the New York News—a newspaper which is a marked exception to the rules of Yankee journalism in its decency and humanity of style, no less than the real value of its arguments, and which may be taken as one undoubted, however, small, example of northern virtue in this war.

RECEIVED HIS REWARD.—During the last political canvass Robert C. Winthrop, of Boston, forsook the traditional New England principles of liberty and popular government and abjured those sentiments of patriotism which animate the great majority of the people of his State and joined himself to the peace faction which aimed at the surrender of national freedom and independence to the demands of rampant armed rebellion. He has just received a suitable reward. As a candidate for United States Senator he received four votes out of two hundred and twenty-three in the House of Representatives. Poor Winthrop! Troy Herald.

TELEGRAPH NEWS.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20—The Tribune's Washington special says one of the results of Secretary Stanton's visit to Savannah is to solve a doubt as to the soundness of Gen. Sherman on the negro question. This soldier's views and policy are those of the government. His treatment of the negroes of Savannah has inspired them with confidence and they rely on him wholly. He has borne in his heart a great scheme for the benefit of their race in Georgia, and it is understood here that the country will be electrified in a few days by an order from him partitioning among them the abandoned of the Sea Island property of fugitive rebel planters, and establishing them in their new freeholds, and laying the foundation of a new social condition in the South; whose superstructure but few politicians in the country are now permitted clearly to see.

The Herald's Washington special says: F. P. Blair, Sr., will start for Richmond again tomorrow. Since his return he has been in frequent and close consultation with the President and other leading members of the Administration, but what the character of his communications has been, or with what authority he is now clothed, is as yet unknown. That he should so soon return is indicative of his having been charged with some communication by Mr Davis, the tenor of which has not been made public, and which, in connection with the success achieved by our forces since his interview with the rebel Executive, and the evident disinclination of the mass of the Southern people to consume the war, induces a belief on the part of the Administration that the resources of statesmanship may now be usefully employed in connection with a vigorous prosecution of military and naval operations to bring about a termination of the existing difficulties. At all events it is certain that he returns at once to the rebel capital. This would indicate that Mr. Blair's first mission was far more successful than was allowed to transpire.

The Tribune's Montreal correspondent, for whose trustworthiness the editor vouches, announcing a proposed rebel raid over the border, for the purpose of releasing the prisoners in Clinton prison, and that Plattsburg, Keesville, Burlington, Waterbury, Vt., and Haverhill, N. H., will be visited.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Gen. Butler has turned over to his successor half a million of dollars, the proceeds of taxes on sutlers and other traders, and other monies.

It is rumored that Senator McDougall, of California, will resign.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Richmond papers contain a debate in the rebel Congress which shows that the Committee on Foreign Relations, to which was referred the peace propositions, reported unanimously in favor of sending commissioners to sue for peace. It also shows that this action has produced a rupture between Jeff Davis and the Richmond Oligarchy on one side, and Congress, representing the people, on the other, which is shaking the whole frame work of the Confederacy.

Mr Orr declared that the people were determined that, in some form, the statesmanship of the country shall be invoked in an honest effort to end the carnival of death by negotiation. The debate is the most important which has occurred during the war.

Richmond papers are again abusing Jeff. Davis, Gen. Bragg, and all others, except Lee, for allowing Fort Fisher to fall. They again call for Lee as Dictator.

The Sentinel having published an article denouncing the peace resolutions as treason, an exciting debate took place in the House, in which the Sentinel was roughly handled. Jeff. Davis was accused of endeavoring to intimidate the advocates of an honorable and peaceful settlement of the war.

In the House, also, there was a debate on the proposed repeal of the exemption law. Mr. Marshall, of Ky., was in favor of a clean sweep of every man in the country. He said the rebels had not begun to fight. Yet others said the country needed farmers, and that the people should be divided into soldiers and producers.

The Richmond Whig says the proposition which came from Jeff Davis to repeal the exemption law, rightfully finds but little favor in Congress.

The Richmond Examiner suggests that all the cotton at Wilmington be burned, as the port being closed, the place is no longer of any consequence, and may fall into the enemy's hands.

The Richmond Enquirer, acknowledging the port closed, says: Now, for the first time, we are thrown entirely upon our own resources. But could have taken it on Christmas day, but he did not because he was afraid. It would be folly to pretend that the port of Wilmington was not of any great value to our cause, but that it did us much harm is equally clear.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—By the steamer Corsica, we have Nassau papers of the 14th instant.

Five blockade runners cleared on the 23d ult. for Wilmington. Six arrived at Nassau on the 6th and 7th., from that port, loaded with cotton, and seven cleared for Wilmington on the 14th.

The brig Udola, from Malaga, brings the captain and crew of the schooner Amelia, abandoned at sea. The Amelia was bound from New York for Matamoras.

The Tribune's correspondent, writing from before Mobile, 7th, says: As matters now rest, the advantages of the situation are largely on our side.

Deceived as to our original intentions, most of the rebel forces designed to protect the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and the navigation of the Alabama and Tombigbee rivers, are far up in the interior, or else so scattered in their endeavors to cover the vulnerable points of the railroad as to have no great strength.

Furthermore, fear of another raid from Vicksburg or Memphis will not permit them to alter the present disposition of their troops. They cannot make a movement without endangering the communications of Mobile. Of course this state of affairs is being taken advantage of, and such movements and dispositions are being made as promise speedily to compass the fall of the city.

Gen. Granger is already active, in fact has been for a week, while the troops on and near Pascagoula river will not be far behind. I expect soon to write you of heavy fighting on both land and water.

In response to the inquiries about the reported capture of Wilmington, the Washington Agent of the Associated Press telegraphs as follows:

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20—Noon.—I have just this moment returned from the Navy Department. I heard nothing there about the capture of Wilmington.

The U. S. transport Fulton, from Port Royal the 17th and Fort Monroe the 19th, has arrived. On the 18th she passed, off Cape Hatteras, the Ironsides, and a gunboat supposed to be the Susquehanna, bound north.

On the same day she passed the steamer Ericsson, bound south. The Fulton brings 501 passengers, among them Maj. Gens. Bayard, Chief Engineer, U. S. A., and Brig. Gen. J. H. Ketchum. The former landed at Fort Monroe.

The monitor Patapsco was destroyed off Charleston, at 2 A. M., on the 17th, while doing picket duty, by a rebel torpedo. Forty or fifty of her crew went down with her. Their names were not ascertained up to the sailing of the Fulton.

On the night of the 14th, the 17th corps and the troops commanded by Gen. Hatch advanced on the Pocotaligo bridge, on the Charleston and Savannah Railroads, and captured it, together with the fortifications and twelve guns, losing in the charge 40 men killed and wounded. The guns were spiked. The enemy evacuated during the night and fell back towards Charleston.

Raven & Bacon, Piano Manufacturers.

THE MUSICAL PROFESSION HAVing of late become quite prominent in connection with newspaper advertisements of four or five different Piano Manufactories, each firm claiming superiority for their instruments, from the indorsements of the most distinguished artists we fear the "innocent public," unacquainted with the merits of the case, may find themselves mystified as to which Piano does really possess the MOST desirable qualities. We would state, that as the RAVEN & BACON PIANOS have been favorably known in the New York market for nearly forty years, they have not found it necessary to obtain the "opinion of the profession" in regard to their quality—the instruments speaking for themselves.

They are continually increasing in favor with the trade, and they are up to the age in every particular.

Parties desiring Pianos will do well to examine our stock of the above instruments before making their selections.

DR. WISHART'S

TAR CORDIAL

IS THE BEST REMEDY FOR THROAT AND LUNG

Diseases.

It is the vital principle of the pine tree obtained by peculiar process in the distillation of the tar, by which its highest medical properties are retained.

It is the only safe and reliable remedy which has ever been prepared from the juice of the pine tree.

It invigorates the digestive organs and restores the appetite.

It strengthens the debilitated system.

It purifies and enriches the blood, and expels from the system the corruption which scrofula breeds.

It dissolves the mucous or phlegm which stops the passages of the lungs.

Its healing principle acts upon the irritated surface of the lungs and throat, penetrating to each diseased part relieving pain and rendering it free from irritation.

It is the result of years of study and experiment, and is offered to the afflicted with the positive assurance on its power to cure the following diseases, if the patient has not too long delayed a resort to the means of cure: Consumption of the Lungs, Coughs, Sore Throat and Breast, Bronchitis, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Diphtheria, and is also a specific remedy for diseases of the Kidneys and Female Complaints.

Have you a cough? Have you a sore throat? Have you any of the premonitory symptoms of that fatal disease, Consumption? Then who should be warned by it more emphatically than you? Hundreds and thousands have been relieved by the Pine Tree Tar Cordial, and hundreds have been restored to perfect health by its use. Do not neglect a cough or cold a moment longer, but procure a bottle of Wishart's Pine Tree Tar Cordial and commence to use it at once. You will find relief in the first dose. Many persons have been cured by the use of Tar Cordial after the disease had assumed the most alarming symptoms, and the most physicians had given them up to die. Many persons have been restored to health by the use of Tar Cordial after they had consumed from one to three bottles of the Cordial, and had been pronounced incurable by their physicians. Consumption does not prey upon the vitals of the human family more than any other disease, and the best physicians for many years have declared it to be incurable, but they could not stop the rapid course of the disease, and I had despaired of ever being restored to health. I was truly on the verge of the grave. Your Pine Tree Tar Cordial was highly recommended to me by a friend. I tried it, and can honestly say that after using four large and one small bottle, I was restored to perfect health. You can give reference to my house, No. 96 N third street, next to the office of Receiver of Taxes, from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M., corner of Chestnut and Sixth streets.

JOHN WARD.

Asthma and Cough Cured.

The Pine Tree Tar Cordial gives instantaneous relief in cases of Asthma and Whooping Cough. It often cures whooping cough in four days, and Asthma at once upon the phlegm and mucus, and expels them from the throat, and the difficulty is relieved. In cases of Asthma, use Dr. Wishart's Dyspepsia Pills with the Cordial, as they have never been known to fail to cure that disease.

Wishart's Tar Cordial

will positively cure this following diseases: Consumption, if not beyond the power of human skill; Inflammation of the Lungs, Throat and Stomach; Bronchitis, Asthma, and as a healing remedy for female complaints.

The above has not been applied to many thousands of cases with the most perfect success, but many have been cured from an apparently grave.

We have in our possession hundreds of testimonials and certificates which have been published, and know that Pine Tree Tar Cordial, and that they have never failed to cure a malignant case of Consumption, when the directions have been strictly followed.

REMEMBER THAT THE TAR CORDIAL, when taken in connection with Dr. Wishart's Dyspepsia Pills, is an infallible cure for Dyspepsia.

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION.

ERASMUS Pa. April 15 1864.

DR. WISHART—Dear Sir—One year ago the Examining Surgeons of this district told me I had Consumption of the Lungs and that I could not be cured. And judging from all my symptoms at that time I myself supposed this to be true. For more than one year I was troubled with a hacking cough which gradually grew so bad that I could not have a sermon for my coughing without spoiling up blood in my handkerchief.

For months I could not work at anything, and was obliged to keep to my bed most of the time. While in this condition I was by Mr. Wishart's store, in the city and he seeing me very low, I was recommended to try your Pine Tree Tar Cordial. It would be too long a great deal of it, but in a few words I will say that it saved me many others, he believed it would do some good. I bought a bottle and commenced using it. In a very short time I saw that I was getting better every day, and after taking several bottles I was entirely restored to health, so that I could work every day at my business, which is very heavy work in an iron foundry. When I commenced to use your Cordial I weighed but one hundred and twenty-seven pounds, and at present I weigh one hundred and one hundred and thirty-five pounds since the use of it I have watched on an average one hundred and fifty men, and I believe that I have prescribed, in this way, as I believe I should not have been living at this time if I had not used your great medicine, and I wish all who suffer to respect it.

Very truly yours,

CAPTAIN SAMUEL HARNER,
