Commodore Foote's Fleet in Position at Island No. 10.---A Battle momentarily Expected.

CAIRO, Ill., March 16.—The flotilla got under way at half-past 5 o'clock this morning and dropped down slowly until about 7 o'clock, when the flag-ship being about twenty miles ahead and six miles above the island discovered a stern-wheel steamer run out from the shelter of a point on the Kentucky shore, and steamed down the river.

Four shells were thrown after her, but the distance was too great for the shots to take effect.

At nine o'clock the fleet rounded to about three miles above the island. The Commodore then ordered three of the mortar boats into position.

At this hour—2 o'clock in the afternoon—we are within range, but as yet have heard nothing from the enemy.

There appears to be a large rebel force on the Kentucky shore, and we have counted thirteen guns in position on the bluffs.

A large number of rebel transport can also be seen across the low point near the Missouri shore, busily engaged around the island, but what they are doing cannot be determined.

The mortar boats are momentarily expected to open fire.

☞ The recent depredations of the Merrimac have caused a rattling among the dry bones of Congress and the Navy Department. The Naval Committee of the Senate have reported in favor of an appropriation of $15,000,000 for the construction of iron clad steamers.

Our Key West Correspondence.

CO. I, 90TH REGIMENT., N. Y. S. V.,
KEY WEST, FLORIDA,
February 16, 1862.

MR. EDITOR—DEAR SIR: Having received one of your papers in which I find myself as a Special Correspondent, and I am so much elated to think that you have noticed my maiden effort, I venture to bore your readers with a more elaborate description of our regiment and the land of promise (land of sand and rain water). I do so, more because I know that many of your readers have dear friends among us, than for the purpose of bringing my name into public print, yet I regard it as no small honor to be one of the contributors to your valuable sheet. In my last, I endeavored to give you a description of the island, and said nothing of ours or other regiments then upon the island, as, at the time of my writing we were so unsettled that I could form no definite idea of the general opinion formed by the inhabitants of our soldiers, or what the soldiers thought of the citizens; but since that time I have endeavored to acquaint myself as far as possible with all the facts and feelings existing among the citizens, and how they regard the soldiers in the social circles of this place, and as John G. Saxe would say, "after weightily weighing the matter," I have come to the following conclusion, that the poorer classes are for the Union, not because the Martial Law makes them so, but from a conviction of the righteousness of the cause; and they have passed through the fiery ordeal when few acknowledged our cause, and have been purified and made strong by it. I think that the number of this class is about sufficient to save the place providing that the number required should not exceed that of the days of Sodom.—These noble people (for they are noble) use all their endeavors to help the condition of the soldiers: they throw open their houses, bake bread and furnish them with water, which is by far a more scarce article than food; and, in fact, act the part of the good Samaritan in every possible manner to the privates, and do not aspire to receive notice of the officers. They cast their bread upon the waters, and I am confident it will return, made plentiful by the blessings of God.

There is still another class, the wealthy and affluent, who, from fear of the law, acknowledge the existence of a Government, but beneath the expression of righteousness is lurking the spirit of a Judas, and they would sell the entire army of the North for a less number of pieces of silver than did Judas sell his master. This class throw open their houses and give levees to the officers, and appear very bland, but in all this they have a different motive than that which actuates the bosom of the former.

I am happy to say that the officers of the 90th observe that dignity which is found alone among New-York men, and do not identify themselves with the gay throng. Headed by our worthy Col., Joseph S. Morgan, who is here regarded as one of the first military men from the State in which he belongs, the officers endeavor to make the regiment not only a moral one by their bright example, but efficient in all military matters, that they may be ready to discharge their duties with honor to themselves and officers when called into active service. Had I time, I could say many things in praise of our officers, but it will be quite sufficient to say that most of them came from old Long Island, and we regard them as "equal to any, and second to none."

The left wing of our regiment is composed mostly of Long Island boys, and Companies I and F are composed of men from your immediate vicinity, and you should be proud to live in a community which furnishes such men for the Union. I would like to give each personally the praise which they merit, but suffice it to say they merit and receive praises from all the officers for their cleanliness and good department and their being from home unites the ties of friendship more strongly, and they seem like a band of brothers, sympathizing in one another's sorrows, and rejoicing in their happiness. If all the armies were composed of such men, there would be no need of Florence Nightingales to watch by the bedside of the sick, and make the closing of the soldier's life happy by her angelic presence, but soldier would watch with soldier, and if Providence should see fit to call one away, there would be no dearth of soldiers' tears.

I cannot close without mentioning some of the many good qualities of our officers, and our Capt., Geo. W. Bissell, should receive my first notice, as many of your readers have sons and brothers entrusted to his charge. I think that there would be no question raised if I should say that he is one of the first officers in the regiment—stern in the extreme while on duty, but at other times pleasant and courteous having a pleasant word for all, and cheering up the sick with a kind enquiry and a pleasant smile; he keeps a watchful eye to see that we get our full rations of food and water, and by his never-ceasing efforts we have been enabled to establish a Company fund by which we are enabled to purchase fish, butter, and other articles not issued by the Quartermaster's department. Capt. Vaughn, also, is another officer who is much esteemed by the regiment; he is a son of Erin, and has a full share of the real Irish wit and humor, and his generosity is only equalled by his good looks. Lieut. Geo. R. Bennett wishes to be remembered, and I am at a loss what to say of him. If I say that he is a good fellow, you will say that we all knew that before; if I say that he is a fine officer, you will say, I expected that; I will therefore say that he is well, holding his original size, and is content to take the world as it goes. The officers have purchased a yacht, and they call it the "Lady Morgan," in honor of our worthy Colonel's wife; it is a trim little boat, and if it could see, would be proud of its name.

In conclusion, I would say that the Jamaica boys are all well, and if they ever go in battle, they will show to you all that they will acquit themselves with honor or die in the attempt; and they all wish to be remembered to everybody; and I will mention privately, for the benefit of your young lady readers that Tom, Dick and Harry have not forgotten them. We expect our Brigadier-General Brennan on the island this week to take command of the forces here.
