Unveiling of the Lincoln Monument—Speech by President Grant.

The ceremonies of unveiling the Lincoln monument at Springfield, Ill., Thursday were notable among other things, in eliciting from President Grant the longest speech he ever made. He said:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:—On an occasion like the present it is a duty on my part to be testimony to the great and good qualities of the patriotic man whose earthly remains now rest beneath this dedicated monument. It was not my fortune to make the personal acquaintance of Mr. Lincoln till the beginning of the last year of the great struggle for national existence. During those years of doubt and despondency, among the many patriotic men of the country Abraham Lincoln never for a moment doubted but the final result would be in favor of peace, union, and freedom to every race in this broad land; his faith in an all-wise Providence directing our arms to this final result, was the faith of the Christian that his Redeemer liveth. Amid obloquy, personal abuse, and hate unimagined, and which were given vent to without restraint through the press, upon the stump and in private circles, he remained the same staunch, unyielding servant of the people, never exhibiting revengeful feelings toward his traducers. He rather pitied them, and hoped for their own sake and the good manhood of their posterity that they might desist. For a single moment it did not occur to him that the man (Lincoln) was being assailed, but that a treacherable spirit—one waiting to destroy the freest government the sun ever shone upon—was giving vent to such a man as the Chief Executive of the nation, only because he was such a lawyer in your midst, he would have avoided all that slander, for his life was a pure and simple one, and he, no doubt, would have been a much happier man; but who can tell what might have been the fate of the nation but for the pure, unselfish and wise administration of Lincoln! From March, 1861, to the day when the hand of an assassin opened the grave for Mr. Lincoln, then President of the United States, my personal relations with him were as close, as intimate as the nature of our respective duties would permit. To know him personally was to love and respect him for his great qualities of heart and head, and for his patience and persistence. With all his appointments from failures on the part of those to whom he entrusted command, and treachery on the part of those who had gained his confidence but to betray it, I never heard him utter a complaint, or cast a glance for had conduct or bad faith. It was his nature to find excuses for his adversaries. In his death the nation lost its greatest head. In his death the South lost its most just friend.
