SMITH COLLEGE CREWS ARE TAUGHT HOW TO ROW BY ONLY WOMAN COACH

Miss Eleanor Clifton, head coach of the Smith College crews, is the only woman in the world to hold such a position. She is credited with having developed some of the finest crews in the country from the girl student athletes at Northampton, Mass.

A factory has been established in New South Wales for the extraction of orange and lemon oils and the manufacture of calcium citrate and allied products.

Quart of Water Cleans Kidneys

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder is Troubling You

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

MR. MOON'S CHAT

Mr. Moon was laughing to himself as he leaned back on his sky couch.

"Such a funny thing happened," he said. "A little girl said to her friend: 'Look at that moon up there.' 'And her friend said: 'Which moon?' 'Well, the little girl laughed and said: 'There is only one moon. How silly you are.' 'But the friend said: 'I know there is only one moon, Moon Up There.' but you told me to look at 'that moon' as though there were a number of others and as though you wanted me to be sure to see that particular one."

"Then they went off laughing and talking, but I thought to myself that it was quite a joke on the one who thought it had been a joke on the other."

"Well," said Mr. Sun, who was still up in the sky and who had not gone to bed, even though Mr. Moon had come up. "I hope no one ever says that I 'sit.'"

"I heard some children saying to each other today that some ignorant people would speak of a person as setting instead of sitting."

"They said that it was not correct to say 'set,' but that they should always say 'sit.'"

"Except, they explained, when speaking of a hen, for then it was correct to say 'set' and not 'sit.'"

"Set was the word to use for hens, but sit for people."

"Well, that's all right."

"But they didn't say a word about me, and I would like to have them know that I don't sit. I set."

"When I'm going to set. I don't sit. And I hope they understand this."

"I think they do," said Mr. Moon.

"Well, I hope so," said Mr. Sun, "and it is a relief to my mind that you think so."

"I have something else to tell you," said Mr. Moon. "I feel quite chatty, as you notice."

"You do notice it, don't you?"

"Yes," said Mr. Sun, "I notice it, and I am pleased, for it is nice to have a chat with you."

"I don't have this opportunity often, and soon now I must go to bed."

"Well," said Mr. Moon, "the other thing I had to tell you was about a dog named Shrimp."

"He was a dog—not a fish. A nice dog, too. I saw him as I looked through a window the other night."

"And what do you suppose he was doing?"

"He was listening to the music over the radio. When his master was listening, Shrimp barked and wanted to be given his turn, and when he listened, he was much pleased."

"Now, if a dog didn't like to hear it, it would be cruel to try to make him listen, for many dogs would not care for music."

"But Shrimp loved it, and he and his master were having such a good time."

"It did amuse me though to see Shrimp's master hold the listening part (I don't know all the terms, dear Mr. Sun, for I never had a radio outfit myself) over Shrimp's ears."

"I also saw Shrimp playing a game called selling papers, in which he went around making believe to sell papers to the family."

"And each member of the family took a paper."

"But I call Shrimp the radio dog now."

"A good name for him," laughed Mr. Sun, who had been much interested in hearing of a dog who listened to the radio."

"But good night, I must be off now—to set and not to sit!"

And Mr. Moon was alone in the sky, except for the stars who came out now to join him.

New Language

"And so your little baby brother can talk now, can he?" asked the lady visitor.

"Yes," said little Harold, "he can say some words very well."

"How nice. And what words are they?" "I don't know," replied Harold, shaking his head vigorously. "I never heard any of them before."—Boston Transcript.
