Oswego Seminar Nuclear Plants Safe, Expert Asserts

Nuclear power generating plants are totally safe, and badly needed to prevent a future power crisis, several speakers told members of the press Friday at a briefing on nuclear power.

"They're safe," Dr. Curtis G. Chezem, a nuclear engineer said, referring to nuclear plants. "I'll stand on that. I stand before God condemned if I'm wrong."

Chezem was one of six speakers at the briefing, which was co-sponsored by the Niagara Mohawk Power Corporation, the Power Authority of the State of New York and the Atomic Industrial Forum. The session, held at Oswego, was attended by more than 100 members of the press from Northern and Central New York and members of the sponsoring organizations and environmental groups.

Chezem is head of the Department of Nuclear Engineering at Kansas State University and was formerly associated with the Atomic Energy Commission, having worked 15 years at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. "No other industry," he declared, "has had such a long heritage of safety and moral conscience."

He said that so many safety devices and "fail-safe" systems had been built into nuclear plants, "that you wouldn't believe it."

Discussing the contention by some that systems would fail, he continued, "I cannot conceive of that happening."

Breeder Reactors Safe?
Are nuclear breeder reactors like the one which may be located in the Waddington area safe?

"It's hard to give a technical answer," Dr. Morton I. Goldman, vice president and general manager of the Environmental Safeguards Division of NUS Corporation said.

There is no special breeder reactor of any one plant where comparisons could be made, he contended.

But, he said, "If the same quality regulations are applied to breeder reactors as are applied to light water plants, then they will be as safe as any of the other plants."

In a detailed report covering the environmental effects of nuclear plants as they are reflected by thermal discharges, land use and waste disposal, Dr. Morton Goldman said: "Operating experience has indicated that the radioactivity release from these plants has been and can be limited to a very small fraction of presently accepted standards."

As for wastes, Dr. Goldman said that in the nuclear industry "there was no such thing as disposal. You handle them."

"It is," he pointed out, "the usual practice to design waste handling systems which are capable of managing quantities of radioactivity and volumes of gas and water which are much greater than those expected to be seen in the lifetime of the plant."

"In view of the unfortunate way in which nuclear energy was introduced into the world," he said, "it is perhaps not surprising that the nuclear power industry is the only one in the history of the world in which the regulations for control and standards preceded the establishment of the industry and before the creation of an environmental problem."

"For example," he added, "it is only now that the standards and criteria are being established for pollution resulting from the burning of fossil fuels in all applications, many years after the problem was recognized."

"No Radiation Dangers"
Another speaker, Dr. Leonard A. Sagan, told the group nuclear plants posed no radiation dangers to people living near them.

He claimed all persons, regardless of their nearness to a nuclear plant, receive 150 times as much radiation from the natural environment as would a person standing next to a plant,

Open House Set For Next Sunday At Mater Dei

The Administration at Mater Dei College is planning an open house for prospective students, their parents, and friends to be held Nov. 14 from 1-4 p.m.

Tours of the college, the library, and dormitories and ample opportunity to get acquainted with the administrative staff, the faculty, and students who will be on hand to answer any questions, will be provided. Refreshments will be served.

Any student interested in taking advantage of this opportunity to learn more about Mater Dei College should write to Director of Admissions, Mater Dei College, Ogdensburg, N.Y. 13669.

In the Service

During the course, students receive instruction in typing, filing and how to perform administrative duties in a military office.

Local Authority To Help Refloat Chinese Vessel

The Ogdensburg Bridge & Port Authority has contracted with the Murphy Pacific Marine Salvage Company to assist in refloating the Chinese vessel SINGAPORE TRADER which went hard aground near Clayton Oct. 15.

Members of Local 217 A of the International Longshoremen's Association, under the direction of President Carroll Gushlaw, will discharge approximately 1100 tons of ship's cargo into barges in an attempt to refloat the ship. The barges will then be towed to the new Port Authority Terminal where the cargoes of artificial flowers, Christmas decorations and ping pong paddles will be placed in temporary storage. The operation is expected to commence at Clayton on Tuesday. If this phase of the operation is successful and the vessel can safely be moved, the ship will be brought to Ogdensburg to complete discharging at the Port Authority pier.

The Port Authority also announced that two ships are scheduled to arrive this week to unload. The M. S. Cacique Yanquetruz will unload 1,000 tons of refrigerated chestnuts and garlic and the S. S. Sovereign Crystal will discharge 550 tons of baler twine.

Unloading operations at the Port Authority Terminal are expected to commence on Wednesday and extend through Saturday. The several activities will require the assistance and cooperation of area residents to efficiently and expeditiously handle the cargoes to be received. All union personnel have been asked to be on hand. Area residents interested in working at the terminal have been asked to call the Port Authority for further information (393-4080), or stop at the Bridge Plaza Administration building to complete employment application forms prior to vessel arrival.

Postal Service Job Procedures Are Announced

The procedure for obtaining employment in the new Postal Service has been announced by Edmund J. Elie, postal examining specialist, at the Ogdensburg Post Office.

Any person interested in working for the Post Office, must first ascertain from his local Postmaster or from announcements in the news, that a vacancy does exist and that the Post Office is recruiting applicants to fill the vacancy. The interested person must then obtain an application from the Postmaster, complete it and return it to him. He should also indicate on the application where he wishes to try the exam, a list of locations will be available to him at the time of application.

Residency requirements are no longer required, therefore making it possible for a person to apply for a job anywhere there is a Post Office, providing he conforms to the procedure as outlined. Further information can be obtained from the local Postmaster or from the Postal Examining Specialist.

Public Invited To November Exhibit Of Art

Watertown - During the month of November, 13 Untitled Paintings by Rosemary Imhoff will be on exhibit in the Jefferson Community College Gallery which is located in the College Library. The public is invited to view the exhibit.

Miss Imhoff, associate professor at SUC Oswego, works with multiple coats of paint and glaze on 4" x 4" masonite panels. Her paintings are acrylics, gesso and various dyes; her glaze Polyurethane. The multiple coats, often as many as five or six of paint and glaze each, achieve a rich deep tone and fantastic textures (she pours the coats, does not use a brush).

Miss Imhoff thinks of her paintings as realistic rather than abstract compositions, stimulated by medical drawings of body parts, microscopic views of cellular forms, organic matter in general. She thinks of them not as finished statements, but as points of departure.

New York University operates 15 schools and colleges at six centers in Manhattan and the Bronx in New York City.

Social Studies Program At SUC Tuesday

POTSDAM—The Fall program of the St. Lawrence Valley Council for the Social Studies will be held at State University College at Potsdam beginning at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Sponsored by the North Country School Study Council and the Ontario-East Regional Center, the program for the session will feature two speakers from the United States Department of State.

First speaker of the evening will be Stephen T. Johnson, country officer for North Vietnam, Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs. His general topic will be "East Asia."

Carl Hemmer, chief of the analysis branch, Analysis and Research Division, Office of Population, Agency for International Development, will speak concerning "Population."

Dr. Robert E. Johnson, director of continuing education at the Potsdam college will welcome the chief school administrators, secondary principals, members of school social studies departments and guests who will attend.

Dr. Victor Minotti, professor of geography at State University College at Potsdam will introduce Stephen Johnson and Prof. C. Thomas Bailey of the college's education department will introduce Mr. Hemmer.

Three Re-Elected Committeemen Of Dairy Assoc.

Canton - The annual dinner meeting of District No. 1 of American Dairy Association and Dairy Council of New York took place at St. Lawrence Inn, Friday, at 8 p.m. with Paul Fishel, Ogdensburg, chairman presiding.

The election of committeemen saw Paul Fishel, Ogdensburg; Leslie Cook, Potsdam, and Howard Hutchinson, Heuvelton re-elected.

Ted Roodhof, public relations director of ADA & DC of NY, Syracuse, was the featured speaker. He explained to the 52 in attendance how the newly-formed United Dairy Industry Association and the role that ADA & DC of NY will play in UDIA's future activities. The membership also voted to change the name of the organization. The name change would occur if approved by all 19 districts and a general meeting of the Board of Directors of ADA & DC of NY.

In addition to the district director's report which related the activities of ADA & DC of NY, during the past year, an outline of the Dairy Council programs in the district was also given.

In addition to those elected, other committeemen making up the District No. 1 local Board of Committeemen include Cyril (Mike) Filiatrault, Gouverneur, Claude Moulton, Potsdam, Allen Dunham, Hammond, and Argie Decker, Winthrop.
