Giants-Cardinals Meet For NFC East Lead

BY HARRY WILDER

The Giants.-Cardinals game is the most important game to date, for the Cardinals are looking to remain in first place in the East, while the Giants are trying to break even. The Giants have a record of 7-4, while the Cardinals are 8-2.

Harry Carson Says This is His Last Season

Harry Carson, the Giants' quarterback, has announced that this will be his last season in the NFL. Carson, who will be 34 next month, has played for the Giants for the past 11 years and has been their starting quarterback for the past 7 years.

Alley Highlights

The Public Skating Community Center, located on Park Avenue, offers a variety of activities for all ages. Open Public Skating is available from 10:00 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. and from noon to 2:30 p.m. Additionally, there are Youth Bowling and Adult Bowling leagues available for participants.

City Recreation

The A. Barton Hepburn Hospital Radiology Department remains open with a full range of radiology services available for the community. Phillip Berman, MD, has left the area; however, we continue to have full-time radiology coverage.

Flyers Still Struggling: Lemieux Returns

The Flyers, who have struggled throughout the season, are facing the challenge of trying to win their first game without their star player, Mario Lemieux, who is currently out with a knee injury. The Flyers will be relying on other players to step up and contribute to their success.

NFC East Lead

The NFC East is currently a tight race, with the Giants, Cardinals, Cowboys, and Eagles all vying for the lead. The Giants and Cardinals are tied for first place with a record of 7-4, while the Cowboys and Eagles are both 6-5. The race is far from over, with each team still having several games remaining.

Chievous A Big Hit Early For The Houston Rockets

Chievous, the Rockets' first-round pick from Missouri last year, seems to exude confidence both on and off the court. He has been a significant contributor to the team's success, helping them maintain an unbeaten championship season.
