STROP.

AYRAULT, & Co.

Have on hand, and will keep for sale a constant supply of these Stropps and Paste—Price One Dollar.

The inventor of this Paste feels it incumbent on him to assure the public, that, notwithstanding the misrepresentations of some who have endeavored to injure its reputation, he will continue to insist upon its superiority over every thing of the kind ever before offered. And with the caution of not using too much, which is affixed to the directions, he trusts he shall not be disappointed.

The certificate of Professor Silman, of Yale College, (who would not be imposed upon,) and also of Mr. Creswick, an experienced Cutler, from Sheffield, together with the verbal testimony of thousands who have used them, will, he concludes, be sufficient to satisfy the most incredulous.

From the London Literary Gazette.

THE DYING MISER TO HIS GOLD.

Lovely treasure, held so fast,
Must, oh! must we part at last!
Fieira, my coffers rilling, prying,
Oh! the dreadful thought of dying!
Cease reflection, kindly cease,
And only let me die in peace!

Lark! methinks I hear them say,
Dying spirit! quick away!
What is this, creates their joys;
Gives them pleasure, and annoys;
Makes them long, my death to see—
Fieira, my gold, can it be thee?

In joy the longing group appears,
Assails at once my eyes and ears;
And hot contention gin to spring,
Adieu! adieu! I faint, I die!
Oh wealth! thou hast thy misery!
Oh gold! thou hast thy sting!

As a proof of the "glorious uncertainty of the law," the following authentic anecdote may not be uninteresting to our readers.—At the assizes of a western county, before the present lord chief justice Abbott, a notorious character was arraigned at the bar for stealing seven geese. The property was found in his possession, and every evidence adduced, so as to leave no doubt in the mind of every person present of a conviction. The case for the prosecution being ended, the prisoner for his defence re-called the old woman (prosecutor's servant) who identified the geese to be the property of her master. "You have sworn," said the prisoner, "that those geese were your master's; now will you swear that there were no ganders amongst them?" "Yes," answered the old woman pertly "there was one gander and six geese." "Now my lord," said the prisoner, addressing himself to the court, "I stand here charged with stealing seven geese whereas it appears in evidence, that they were six geese and one gander. He therefore took an exception to the indictment, which the learned judge held to be a good one, and the prisoner was accordingly discharged.

The following strange, but well attested occurrence, actually took place a few days since.

A man servant in the employ of the Rev. Dr. Palmer, of Yarcombe, near Churk, being taken ill, the medical attendant on the family was sent for who prepared for the man a bolus from the family medicine chest, and having wrapped up in paper the grain weight used in weighing out the proper proportions of the drugs, left them on the table, and near to them the bolus, which he desired one of the females of the house to carry to the man's servant, with instructions to take it immediately in treacle. Some hours afterwards his master came to inquire about the patient, and found him suffering under very uneasy symptoms, which the man attributed to the strange kind of medicine the Doctor had ordered for him, and which he said "he could never have got through with had he not cut it into smaller pieces;" but he thanked God that, though it was rather rough and sharpish, he had got it all down. This account puzzled his master exceedingly, who, however, soon discovered that the man had actually swallowed in treacle, a complete set of brass grain-weights, instead of the bolus, which was found lying on the table, in his master's room. Proper remedies were immediately administered for dislodging this uncommon dose from the man's stomach, who subsequently recovered from his illness. It would be difficult to find a parallel to this instance of implicit faith in the power of the curative art, or a similar exhibition of astounding ignorance among "unfledged animals walking on two legs."—Bristol Mercury.

Canine sagacity.—In October, 1800, a young man going into a place of public entertainment, at Paris, was told that his dog would not be permitted to enter, and he was accordingly left at the door with the guard. The young man had scarcely entered the lobby when his watch was stolen; he returned to the guard, and prayed that his dog might be admitted, as through his means he might discover the thief. The dog was suffered to accompany his master, who intimated to the animal that he had lost something. The dog set out immediately in quest of the strayed article, and fastened on the thief, whose guilt on searching him was apparent. The fellow had no less than six watches in his pocket, which being laid before the dog, took it up by the string, and bore it in safety to him.

A gentleman calling upon a friend in the city, who was attended by a physician from the west end of the town, inquired of the Doctor, on one of his visits if he did not find it inconvenient to attend his friend from such a distance? "Not at all, sir," replied the Doctor, "for having another patient in the adjoining street, I can kill two birds with one stone." "Can you so?" replied the sick man, "then you are too good a shot for me;" and dismissed him.

The steward, a Creole, on board the ship Franklin, was detected, on the passage of that vessel from Charleston, in robbing the passengers. He stole $200 from the baggage of a lady and her daughter, and a watch belonging to a gentleman, besides other articles of value. On the arrival of the Franklin, he was committed for trial.—Nat. Adv.

Mr. Leigh Hunt, the Editor of the London Examiner, has been found guilty of a libel on the house of commons.

Bills of indictment have been found against the London Courier, Morning Post, &c. for articles against the Queen.

Shameful Outrage.—The pulpit in the new Methodist meeting house at Harrisburgh, Pa. was blown to pieces on the second inst. by means of a black of wood filled with powder. Several persons have been apprehended as having been concerned in the foul act.

Major Generals Brown and Scott have arrived in this city; and Major General Guiney is said to be near at hand. The gentlemen, it is said, compose a Board of Officers for the purpose of re-organizing the Army according to the act of the last session.—Nat. Intel.

Virginia Election.—Thomas Nelson is re-elected a member of the House of Representatives. He is now the oldest member of the House, who is by courtesy called the Father of the House. He is the only member who has been in that House, without intermission, since the memorable era of 1807.—Ibid.

Common Carriers.—A suit has lately been determined, before one of the Massachusetts courts, the result of which may serve to remind stage proprietors, and others concerned of the responsibility of common carriers. The Messrs. Dwigts, of Springfield, had sued Brewster & Co. for the recovery of $1500, which had been delivered in Geneva bills; covered in an envelope and directed to the plaintiffs. One Sergeant, the stage driver, who was charged to take care of it, and was repeatedly told that it contained money, and papers as valuable as money—that he must take care of it, deliver it, and get his pay for it. The package was lost, and it was held that the stage proprietors were accountable for the money. Although this case is far from being a novel one; yet there are many travellers, as well as carriers, who are ignorant of the provisions of the law in this material respect.—Hudson Whig.

Rags.—It is remarkable fact, which ought to be generally known to house keepers, that one hundred wt. of rags at the present prices can purchase two hundred wt. of flour! This is an highly interesting fact connected with domestic economy; and ought to be thought of by every family both in town and country.—Phil. Gaz.

The population of New Jersey is 277,078—an increase since 1810 of 22,013. At that period the state contained 238,562 inhabitants—in 1800, 211,149.

Weschester, April 11.
Last week a little boy, son of Mr. Benjamin Cope, of East Bradford, only 4 years old, was playing near a chamber window, to which he had found his way. He had been in the habit of getting out of the kitchen window, holding by his hands, and dropping to the ground a small distance, which did not hurt him, and now the little fellow, full of life, was all unconscious of the difference or the danger. Mrs. Cope hastened up stairs to the room, when the child threw himself out, as he had been wont to do hanging along by his little hands, laughing that he could not catch him. Who can describe the agony of a mother's feelings? It was an awful sight—it was an only child—and oh! if it had not been it was a darling boy, his eye full of mischief; and he depending by nothing but the slender hold of his infant hands—three stories from the ground, and therefore, over apparently inevitable destruction.

The mother could scarcely speak ere he fell. Was it an angel's wing that buoyed him up and broke his fall? Extraordinary as it may appear, he did not break a limb; but he fell on the earth between two stones, and was so little bruised that in an hour he was running again, playful as ever.—Village Record.

Two vessels one laden with $30000 in specie, and the other with a valuable cargo of goods, were wrecked on the mouth of the Mississippi, in a tremendous gale, on the 7th ult. and the vessel and cargoes were lost.

A woman lately died in Durham, Mass. aged 77 years, who left 13 children, 123 grand children, 400 great grand children, and 44 of the fourth generation, making all 607.

It is calculated that every 7th person in England is a pauper.

The house of Dr. Saunders of Virginia, was robbed on the 23 inst. by three ruffians, who knocked down Mr. S. and his friend, tied and gagged them, and robbed the house of 700 dollars in specie, and rode off with three of the best horses.

Lady H. L. Stanhope, about 40 years of age, a niece to the late Mr. Pitt, now lives a sort of Monastic life, on Mount Sion, and refuses to see any of her countrymen.

It appears by an article in a North Carolina paper, that the ladies in that state are made habit of cleaning their teeth with snuff—and a writer in defending the practice says—"I know of no powder so well calculated to cleanse and purify the teeth as that of snuff—and it preserves as well as purifies."

The London Monthly Magazine for February 1821, says, "A late traveller in Italy describes the Empress Maria Louisa, the wife of Napoleon, as being still under the surveillance of Count Neipperg. She is elegant in her dress, pale in her complexion, care-worn and melancholy. We have long heard that she is little better than a prisoner."

Stacking Occurrence.—A house in Madawaska, Lower Canada, was burnt to the ground about four weeks ago, and five children fell victims to the devouring flames. The unfortunate mother narrowly escaped with her life.

It has been decided, by a competent tribunal, in England, that a bill of exchange originating in a gaming transaction, was a good security in the hands of a bonafide holder.

There is an estate in England which has been in the possession of the same family 750 years.

An English paper states, that a weaver, in Scotland had, by one wife 62 children; 40 of whom attained the age of maturity.

Til for Tut.—A Kentucky paper, throwing back the sarcasm of some of our Eastern prints, advising the banks of Kentucky and Ohio, to redeem their notes with hams and potatoes; recommends that the banks of Hulls and Augusta, Wisnasser and Castine, redeem theirs with lath, shingles, codfish and onions, and for small change with herrings.

The venerable William Findlay, late governor of Pennsylvania, died on the 6th inst.

A gentleman of Winstchester, Vt. has invented a machine for getting out clover seeds. The machine can be worked by one person, and is quite portable, and gets out from 6 to 8 bushels per day.

The steam-bent Fire Fly was sunk by the ice, on the 2d ult. about 20 miles from Louisville.—N. J. Eagle.
