MASSENA

Area Churches Extend Welcome To Visitors

Massena and area churches extend a cordial welcome to all.

This listing of services is published in the Thursday edition with the thought in mind that many visitors in the area will wish to attend the church of their choice.

Each clergyman is requested to make the necessary changes in this listing whenever he has changed the hours of worship. He should see that the notice is kept up to date.

The listing should include the hours of services and other, regularly scheduled meetings so that it can be published week after week with a minimum of change.

Special church events can be published as separate news items.

T. Parker Succeeds B. McMorran

Albany N.Y. (AP) — Theodore W. Parker, a retired Army general, has been named the state's new commissioner of transportation.

Parker appointed Monday by Gov. Rockefeller, will succeed J. Burch McMorran of Troy. The job pays $37,275 a year.

McMorran retired Thursday after having reached the mandatory retirement age of 70. E. Burton Hughes is acting commissioner until Parker takes over on Sept. 2.

Parker, 60, was last assigned as chief of staff of the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe (SHAPE). As the chief of staff there, Parker headed a staff headquarters of more than 600 officers and 2,500 other personnel from nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

State Has Good Picnic Facilities

Albany — Picnic areas are the traveling family's favorite outdoor restaurant, says the New York State Department of Commerce.

This casual way of roadside dining appeals to tourists and vacationers summering in the Empire State. Its appeal is often enhanced by surrounding scenery by being as economical as dining at home and by a fact first discovered by gourmets — that food always tastes better outdoors.

Picnic sites are found in all areas of the state. Most of the more than 120 state parks in New York have picnic facilities with outdoor fireplaces and tables.

In recent years, many families have discovered that picnicking on an island can be fun. Nine state-owned islands on Lake George are reserved for picnickers. Island parks in the Thousand Islands region of the St. Lawrence River also cater to the picnicking clientele.

Picnicking is no problem along the 559-mile New York State Thruway. Eleven parking and rest areas line the route between Catskill and Hamburg. Tables are provided on the rest area grounds. Some 30 Thruway service areas also have picnic tables set up on the grass near the parking area. Picnic and rest areas with tables are available to travelers on the Adirondack Northway, North-South Expressways, on Route 17 Quickway and other major highways in the state.

Drinking water is available at some areas. Picnickers with a yen for cooking hot dogs or hamburgers will have to use their own barbecue grills or hibachi sets.

If you take your dog on a picnic, you ought to be aware that four state park regions — Taconic, Niagara Frontier, and Long Island and Palisades — have no objection to dogs, providing they are kept on a leash.

Welfare Cuts Can't Be Restored

Albany — There are no state funds available to provide additional money for education and welfare, or for the New York City transportation system. Governor Rockefeller said Friday.

"The cupboard is bare as far as the state is concerned, there is simply no more money," the governor said. Drawing his hand across his neck, he added "and the taxpayers have had it up to here as far as taxes are concerned."

Rockefeller used the "up to here" gesture three times when reporters asked him if there was any chance of restoring money cut from welfare and education programs earlier this year, or providing financial assistance to New York City's ailing transportation system.

Rockefeller, holding his first Capitol news conference in three months, told reporters that the outlook for next year wasn't much brighter. He said he did not want to speculate at this time on the need for more taxes or further cutbacks in 1970, but he said there would be a "tight" state budget.

Later in the day, Rockefeller traveled to Blue Mountain Lake where he dedicated a new building at the Adirondack Museum. He told 400 members of the museum association that he would campaign this fall for the conservation bill of rights amendment to the state constitution.

In Albany, the governor branded as "absolutely false" charges by Democratic leaders that there was a cushion of as much as $1 billion built into the present state budget to help restore state aid funds next year when he will seek reelection.

"The only basic hope for continuing the rate of improvement we have enjoyed in this state will depend on what the federal government can provide us," he said. He added that he did not expect any increase in federal funds would be available in time for the current fiscal year.

On other subjects, Rockefeller refused to speculate on the political future of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I would not presume to add my voice to what has already been said except that everybody feels deeply for him (Kennedy), for the family and especially for the girl — it's all very sad," Rockefeller said.

Rockefeller repeated his endorsement of State Sen. John J. Marchi for mayor of New York.

"The Republican party in New York City has elected Mr. Marchi as its mayoral candidate and I have said I would support that decision," he said. "But, I will not campaign."

The governor said he was "surprised" by the outcome of the June primary election, in which Marchi defeated Mayor John V. Lindsay. Rockefeller did not elaborate.

Rockefeller said his decision to support Republican candidates, but not campaign for them, also applied to the Buffalo mayoral race, where Mrs. Alfreda Slominski, described as an ultra-conservative by her opponents is the GOP candidate.

The governor said he expected a special session of the legislature will be called in November to deal with the problem of reapportioning the state's 41 congressional districts. A court order has mandated the redistricting by early next year. The governor is the only person in the state with the power to call a special session, and he sets the agenda. While not ruling out the possibility, he indicated that other topics such as the shortage of welfare and school funds, would not be taken up at the special session.

Panama Hats
The so-called Panama or Jipijapa hats, made of Toquilla straw, are manufactured in Ecuador. They are called "Panama" because gold rush pioneers first found them on sale there.

During the government's fiscal year ending in 1968, nearly 17 billion pounds of food, costing $368 million, was donated through its various outlets.

Rockefeller's decision to support Republican candidates, but not campaign for them, also applied to the Buffalo mayoral race, where Mrs. Alfreda Slominski, described as an ultra-conservative by her opponents is the GOP candidate.
