GETS FIRST WASH—Supervisor John Fullerton of the town of Greenwich was the first customer of the C&J Car Wash when it opened for business Tuesday. Mr. Fullerton, on the right, is putting the finishing touches on his car as another car waits its turn. On the left in the picture is John Blake, district representative of the Mac-Gray corporation of Boston, Mass., shaking hands with John Carmody, who, with his wife, Carol, standing next to him, own and operate the car wash. The name, C&J is taken from the names of the Carmodys' children, Cindy and Johnny.

The world and kitchen of Sorrento, Italy, inspire this combination of time-tested spaghetti sauce and newly found gourmet fare, Alaska King crab.

Italians, who created spaghetti sauce, begin by gently sauteing onion and garlic in olive oil. The aroma flourishes with the addition of marjoram and sweet basil. Nippy parsley completes the blend of herbs and all are simmered in a rich tomato sauce.

As a variation on age-old Italian cuisine, Alaska King crab adds fresh ocean flavor that will delight even the most conventional Italians.

Crab Spaghetti Sorrento

2 (7½ oz.) cans Alaska King crab or 1 lb. frozen Alaska King crab
¼ cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, chopped
¼ cup onion, diced
2 tablespoons minced parsley
½ teaspoon dried marjoram
½ teaspoon dried basil
1 (1 lb. 12 oz.) can tomatoes
1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ pound spaghetti
Grated Parmesan cheese

Heat olive oil in saucepan. Add garlic and onion and cook over low heat until golden. Stir in parsley, herbs, canned tomatoes and tomato paste. Add salt and pepper. Simmer for 45 minutes. Drain crab and slice into bite-size pieces. Add and heat through. Meanwhile, boil spaghetti in salted water until tender. Drain. Serve with crab sauce and pass grated Parmesan cheese. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Unemployment Benefits

New York State Division of Veterans Affairs

Unemployment Benefits: A young man entering the armed forces must notify his employer prior to his enlistment or induction if he wants to be eligible for reemployment rights when he returns.

Blind annuity: Veterans of the Vietnam conflict who were residents at the time of their entry into the service are now eligible to apply for New York state's $500 blind annuity, if they meet the state's standard for blindness and other requirements.

The new GI bill provides veterans with an opportunity to go to college. They must have entered service between January 31, 1955 and after January 31, 1963. They must also have been discharged honorably. Servicemen are also eligible if they have served at least two years on active duty.

GI loan reminder: Final date for World War II veterans to apply for GI loans is July 25, 1967. Each day is an individual deadline for many veterans since termination of eligibility is based on length of service.

Questions about the rights and benefits of veterans, servicemen or their dependents may be submitted for individual attention to the New York State Division of Veterans Affairs, County Office Building, Upper Broadway, Fort Edward, New York.

Maples, Oaks Still Good as Shade Trees

Many trees planted in 1967 are varieties similar to those planted nearly a century ago, a Cornell university horticulturist has pointed out.

Maple and oaks have continued to be popular shade trees and the sugar maple is the official New York state tree, Prof. A. M. S. Pridham, N. Y. state college of agriculture, reminded.

Because a tree is an investment, the choice of a suitable kind is an important decision, he said. Underground utilities, overhead wires, paved roads, sidewalks, disease and insect problems must all be considered when making a choice.

Sugar maple is a favorite because its irregular pattern of light and shade give contrast and variety that fit in with wall and glass spaces of modern homes, schools, and offices. Its yellow or red fall color adds further color and interest.

The professor advised that it does best in fertile, well-drained soils but doesn't survive under poor or wet soil conditions. Also, it is subject to a die-back problem in some areas of the state.

Prof. Pridham also recommended the red maple for its showy red flowers and fruits in early spring and red or yellow fall color. Silver maple should be avoided, he warned, because of its weak wood that is subject to storm damage.

In the oak family, red and pin oaks are recommended. The red oak is easily transplanted and has good red to yellow fall color. Pin oak is pyramidal in form with a strong central trunk and horizontal branches requiring plenty of space to develop.

Other suggested large trees are the European beech, thornless and fruitless varieties of honeylocust, tuliptree, littleleaf European linden, and the common linden.

The professor warned against using some of the fast-growing varieties such as western catalpa, poplars, aspens, and willows. He said these have weak wood that is subject to storm damage or the root systems may clog drains and water lines.

Cancer Crusade Is Successful

Residents of the town of Jackson contributed $465 to the American Cancer crusade this year. Mrs. Ernest Skellie and Mrs. Emerson McCuthan, chairmen of the drive, commend the crusaders for their excellent coverage of the township and the residents for their generous donations.

There's nothing like home-grown fruit, freshly picked. New York state residents planning to grow some of their own fruit can obtain advice by ordering single, free copies of Cornell bulletin 2913, "The Home Fruit Planting," from the Mailing Room, Research Park, Ithaca, N. Y. 14850.

It takes 50 railroad cars to transport the New York city telephone directories from Chicago which prints the major volume of the nation's telephone directories.
