With the In Crowd

If you want to be with the in crowd in Greenwich you're in the Battenkill these days. That's where hundreds of people have been gathering every day and on into the evenings these hot days. It's 20 years ago that the beach on the Battenkill was opened and during those two decades it has consistently been the most popular spot in town in the summer.

It's a Lonesome Place

There's no sidewalk loitering on Main street these days. The only people out are those who have to be, and they transact their business quickly and retreat. There have been the usual number of cars about, but a great lack of pedestrians—and no wonder—it's no place to be unless you have to.

Hartford Must Stop Burning At Landfill

The state health department has ordered the town of Hartford in Washington county to stop open burning at its refuse disposal area and to stop using the facility unless it is operated as a sanitary landfill.

Dr. Hollis S. Ingraham, the state health commissioner, announced the order last week. It is based on recommendations of Dr. David M. Schneider, who presided at a public hearing in the case.

Under the order, $5,250 in penalties was assessed for sanitary code violations, but execution of the penalty was suspended on condition the town complies with the sanitary code if it continues using the site for refuse disposal.

The $5,250 comprised $250 each for 21 violations consisting of failure to compact and cover refuse; failure to confine refuse in an area that could be effectively maintained, and failure to confine papers to the refuse disposal area.

Howard Burch, town supervisor, represented Hartford at the hearing. The department was represented by Donald A. MacHarg, counsel, and William B. Parker, attorney.

In a sanitary landfill, refuse must be compacted daily and covered with at least six inches of earth or other suitable material. Within a week after final deposits are made in an area, they must be compacted and covered with two feet of material.

In addition, flies, rodents, vermin and other insects must be kept under control; papers and refuse must be confined to the disposal area by fencing or other suitable means; salvaging of refuse must be regulated to avoid creating a nuisance, and the approach road must be kept open to vehicular traffic throughout the year.

New York Pays $4.79 a Hundred

Dairy farmers will receive a uniform farm price of $4.79 per hundredweight for June milk deliveries, to pool handlers in the New York-New Jersey milkshed, Dr. A. J. Follard, market administrator, announces. The May price was $4.81; $4.42 was paid in June, 1967. The producer differential was set at 6.4 cents for each tenth of a pound of fat above or below the 3.5 per cent standard.

New York City Girl Spending Week with the Getty Family

Valerie Gray, 14, of Jamaica, L. I., is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Getty and family at their farm in Hebron. Valerie is one of 29 student leaders from New York City's junior high schools selected to take part in the milk teaching project called Operation Dairyland. This is sponsored by the Governor's Committee for Increased Use of Milk.

Valerie arrived in Albany by bus Tuesday where she was met by the Gettys. She will be their guest until next week Wednesday, and will take part in the family living and learn about dairy farming.

Mr. and Mrs. Getty have eight children, the oldest, Diane, is Valerie's age, 14. The others are Sally, 12; Bonnie, 11; Randy, 9; Jerry, 8; Rhonda, 7; Kevin, 5; and Brian, 2. They live on a 245-acre farm north of West Hebron.

Mr. Getty has a dairy of 140 head of cattle, mostly Holsteins, 77 of which are milking. They produce about a ton and a half of milk a day and this is shipped to the Boston market through the New England Milk Producers association.

Mr. Getty is assisted in his farm operation by his father, Lawrence Getty, his children who help out considerably he says, and one hired man. He has an extra hand to help this week, Valerie.

The Gettys made no special plans to entertain Valerie as the purpose of the program is to acquaint city young people with farm life. No doubt there will be a number of rural activities, besides farming, that Valerie will take part in.

On her return to New York Valerie will write an account of her visit to the Gettys and will speak to school groups about milk and dairy farming.

Valerie was vice president of her 7th grade this past year, is a member of the orchestra, band and physical education dancing club. She took part in the school talent show, is chairman of the Leaders club, and is a member of the Honor society. Her scholastic average this past year was 87 per cent, and she has received commendations and awards in all major subjects.

$28,970 Planning Program For Easton Is Approved

The planning consultant for the planning board of Easton, Hans Klunder Associates, has been authorized to proceed with the development of a comprehensive plan for the town of Easton as part of the Easton Planning program recently approved by the U. S. department of housing and urban development. The news of this approval was received from the New York state office of planning coordination which administers the 701 planning assistance program.

The firm of Hans Klunder Associates is located in Hanover, N. H., and is a specialist in community planning in New England and New York state. It was established six years ago and has grown into a multi-discipline consulting firm. Members of the firm include both full time staff members and associates who are specialists in design, economics, planning, transportation, management, geology and other related fields.

Last summer the planning consultant laid the ground work for the comprehensive plan in Easton by conducting a door to door survey in the town. The door to door survey provides extensive data which will be used in developing the plan. It also indicates certain needs and desires of the town residents which will be considered in the plan. The results of the survey were presented to the planning board on Tuesday, July 9.

One of the main purposes of the planning program will be to translate people's desires as expressed in the survey into concrete proposals. Several significant facts emerged from this survey. These include the importance that people place on agriculture as the key ingredient to the town's future development. Agriculture was listed four to one ahead of any other future economic potential. The survey also indicated the realization of the need for protective ordinances in order to preserve the character of Easton. By a significant measure people favored mobile home ordinances, land use controls, and billboard regulations.

In August the consultant will take up the town's history, analysis of the existing land use pattern, analysis of the existing street and highway system and a review of the new base maps.

The schedule for the next 12 months is as follows: September, presentation of the economic and population study and the physiographic and geologic study; October, neighborhood analysis; November, existing public lands and buildings and utilities. December will conclude the inventory and analysis section with a review while the proposed land use will be presented in January, 1969. In February, proposed streets and highways and proposed public lands and buildings will be taken up. In March the preliminary capital improvements program will be taken up and finalized in April. In May all the reports and maps are scheduled for review. June, July and August are scheduled for recommendations on means of implementing the plan, such as land use controls and other implementation methods. The final report will be presented in September, 1969.

The remaining part of the 24-month program will be devoted to working with the planning board and other concerned agencies in carrying out the recommendations of the plan.

The $28,970 planning program is financed by the U. S. department of housing and urban development, the New York state office of planning coordination, and local funds. The department of housing and urban development has approved a grant of $19,314 which is two thirds of the cost, with the state and town assuming the remaining cost equally. The town's share will amount to $4,828 which will be paid at the end of the 24-month planning period.

The approval is a milestone in efforts of the planning board to deal with the many problems facing Easton.
