Willard to introduce ski programs Sunday

Parents and young skiers interested in Willard Mountain's training program are invited to meet at Willard Mountain Ski area this Sunday afternoon, November 30 at 2 p.m.

The session will acquaint parents with the competitive racing and freestyle programs and Willard's new season-long learn-to-ski program, the Star program. Before the meeting, C.B. Vaughn, famous ski wear manufacturer, will display his complete line of competitive ski wear for the racer and freestyler. He will take orders for those requiring special clothing.

Sara Idleman, director of Willard's Star program, will answer any questions about that program. Not only rank beginners, but those who have already learned how to ski will find opportunities to improve their abilities in the program.

Both Mike Annett and Skip Windemiller, respective directors of Willard's racing and freestyle programs, will also be on hand along with other coaches associated with Willard.

Following the meeting, several outstanding ski films will be shown. The folks at Willard would like to emphasize that all interested skiers and their parents are invited to attend the meeting to learn about Willard's programs for all young skiers.
