THE

Saratoga

SPOON.

The design of this spoon is the most striking of the many that have appeared. The handle is represented by a paddle and a quiver of arrows rising at the back. On the blade of the paddle is a miniature figure, beautifully executed, of Uncas, the "Last of the Mohicans," drinking from High Rock spring as it originally appeared. Where the handle runs into the bowl is seen the turtle, which was the "totem" of the Mohicans.

These heavy sterling silver souvenirs of America's Great Spa, are to be had only of
