TREACHERY

A persistent cough is at first a friend, for it gives warning of the approach of a deadly enemy. Heed the warning before it is too late, before your lungs become inflamed, before the doctor says, "Consumption." When the danger signal first appears, help nature with

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Don't delay until your lungs are sore and your cough settled down deep in your chest. Kill the enemy before the deadly blow kills you. Cure your cough today. One dose brings relief. A few doses make the cure complete.

LUNGS NATURALLY WEAK

Lungs sore or weakened by the grip, or by pneumonia or successive colds, and throats raw or inflamed from colds and coughing, need the balmy soothing and healing influence of

TOLUID EMULSION.

Is grand for the children. It is grand for the grown folks. It is very palatable, and as happens as honey. A bottle of this fine preparation is often saved a child's life by obviating the conditions leading to croup and diphtheria, while it adults it is a great protector against Asthma, whooping cough, and Consumption. Even here the latter diseases are chronic TOLUID EMULSION will give more of relief and comfort than any other remedy. It is guaranteed to benefit or your money is returned for the king.

IF I HAD THE TIME.
If I had the time to find a place
And sit me down full face to face
With my better self, that cannot show
In my daily life that rushes so—
It might be, then, I should see my soul
Was stumbling still toward the shining goal,
I might be moved by the thought sublime,
If I had the time!
If I had the time to let my heart
Speak out and in my life take a part,
To look about and stretch a hand
To a comrade quartered in "no-luck" land—
Ah, God! if I might but just sit still
And hear the note of the whelp-poor-will,
I think that my wish with God's would rhyme,
If I had the time!
If I had the time to learn from you
How much for comfort my word could do:
And I told you then of my sudden will
To kiss your feet when I did you ill;
If the tears a shock of the coldness feigned
Could flow, and the wrong be quite explained—
Brothers, the souls of us all would shine,
If we had the time!

The Last Moose in the Adirondacks.
The last number of the Elizabethtown Post says Simpson J. Moody, the next to the oldest living settler at Tupper Lake, writes that the last moose killed in that part of the Adirondacks came to its death through the instrumentality of his brother Phineas. He could not recollect the exact date but as Phineas died in the Union army during the war, it must have been some time in the early 60's.

Phineas was hunting on Bog River below Mud Lake and had two men by the name of Bullard and Leonard from Malone with him. While jacking one night he paddled Bullard up to a big cow moose. Bullard had a single barrel rifle carrying a ball larger than a man's thumb, but he lost confidence in the gun when the moose walked up to the boat and stuck her head over the jack almost into his face and not till she turned to go away could he muster up courage to shoot. The shot was effective, however, and the moose was secured.

I have heard the late Harvey Holt of Keene Valley tell the story of how his party killed the cow and calf moose which are among the last if not the very last killed in Essex County. The moose were run with dogs and the cow eventually trapped by breaking through the snow over a slash with her fore legs on one side of a fallen tree and her hind legs the other, near the inlet of Boreas Pond. The calf was shot the day following on Sand Point, near Ausable Lake.

There seems to be a pretty general belief that the moose—and wolves as well—were not exterminated in the Adirondacks but migrated to Canada. Madison Grant expressed the idea in an article in the "Century" magazine, "The Vanishing Moose," printed several years ago. In Maine and other countries where moose still are found there is evidence to show that migrations of equal magnitude have taken place. It is hard to see, however, just what route the moose could have taken to reach Canada from Northern New York without being observed and though such a migration may have taken place, it must be admitted that it is not probable.

It would be interesting to know if any of your readers have information as to whether caribou ever existed in the Adirondacks. This fact apparently has never been settled by the naturalists, though there are stories of caribou horns having been dug up at various places.

FRANKLIN COUNTY DINNER.
An Interesting Letter from George F. Chipperfield.
Last Saturday evening about sixty of the sons of Franklin county sat down to a banquet at Delmonico's, New York city. The gathering was the result of a growing desire among men identified with Franklin county to meet occasionally for the promotion of fellowship. Hon. Ashbel P. Fitch presided and in a most genial and felicitous manner introduced the toasts. There sat with him at the table of honor Hon. F. D. Kilburn, Judge Trux, Job E. Hedges, James C. Spencer, Col. James, Fred J. Seaver, Francis Lynde Stetson and Col. John R. Van Wornor. A place had been reserved there for Edward L. Stevens, but he was unable to be present. Besides those residing in the city there were present Hon. F. D. Kilburn, Leslie C. West, Fred J. Seaver, M. E. McClary and Mr. William E. Hall, of Burlington, Vt.

The superb menu was of a kind to challenge the appetites of men bred upon the northern hills, and the toasts were such as to give the dinner a character of its own. The toasts were in such matters left off, and in the course of his forays into the affairs and history and relative merits of Franklin, Clinton and St. Lawrence, as well as in his narration of certain astonishing experiences in the south woods, furnished much good-natured provocation for the ready retort of Col. James, Judge Trux, Mr. Stetson and Mr. Hedges. It was diamond out diamond and all of it fun for the listeners.

A pleasant interlude was a mandolin duet by John A. LaBarge and S. Sumner Shears which was exquisitely rendered. A constitution and by-laws were all ready and adopted in short order. The following officers were elected: President, Ashbel P. Fitch; vice-president, Daniel P. Morse; secretary, Frederick L. Allen; treasurer, W. C. Breed; members of the executive committee, Edwin E. Dickinson, George Barry Mallon and Dr. A. M. Phelps.

During the progress of the evening the company was honored with a brief visit by Gov. Roosevelt. It was announced that the governor had snatched a few moments from another banquet then in progress and had dropped in on the Franklin feast largely out of personal compliment to Mr. Kilburn. Without making any allusion to the attacks made by a certain New York paper, he stated that he had come in with the purpose of saying to Franklin county men that in his duties that devolved on himself as chief executive of this commonwealth there had been no man who rendered him more efficient service, or in whom he had reposed fuller confidence than Mr. Kilburn, and that in every instance the latter had more than met his expectations. This was said in a few words but with a warmth and deep sincerity that excited the company to a high pitch of enthusiasm and the governor's remarks were received with spontaneous outburst of applause. It was a magnificent and well-deserved tribute to which Mr. Kilburn and his friends may well be proud. It was in the few sma' hours when the gathering broke up, Franklin's sons may go far from her but they do not forget her.

OBITUARY.
Mrs. Matthew E. Shepard.
Miss Atwell Shepard, wife of Matthew E. Shepard, died at her home, Webster St., Malone, N. Y., March 8th, 1900, aged 37 years. Death was due to internal strangulation. The deceased was born in Franklin, N. Y., July 7th, 1862. She married Mr. Shepard nine years ago, and for three years thereafter they resided in Gloversville. They came to Malone six years ago, Mr. Shepard assuming the management of the Northern New York Telephone Co. While Mrs. Shepard's health had never been rugged, few were aware of her serious condition, and her death was a shock alike to relatives and friends. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon, Rev. H. E. Waugh officiating. The floral offerings were beautiful and included a particularly nice piece from employees of the telephone company. The interment was at Frankfort, N. Y. Mrs. Shepard was an active member of the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church of this place, also of the Y. P. S. C. E. and other local organizations. She was a lady of genuine sympathy and to the extent of her strength and ability did much good. Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. M. A. Atwell, also of Utica, and a sister, Mrs. F. L. Wright, and nephew, Arthur J. Wright, of Albany.

This week Loyal P. Eldredge, of Canton, graduates from the Albany School of Pharmacy. He has a fine position awaiting him with a drug house in Syracuse.
Mrs. C. W. Reed went to New York last week to spend a short vacation at the home of her son. Her little grandchild, who has been staying in Malone for some time, accompanied her.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Eldredge and Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Wilson went to New York Saturday last for a short visit and to see Henry Irving, the actor, in one of his famous roles.
Miss Julia Lenney has accepted a position as teacher at Mountain View, Franklin county, and Miss Mary Lenney at Owl's Head. Both young ladies leave this week for their positions.—Potdam Herald.

Mrs. L. S. Lehr and Mrs. Brayton Clark, of Dexter, N. Y., have been in town a few days visiting their husbands, who are connected with the Malone Paper Company. Both gentlemen are boarding at the Howard House.
Mrs. K. M. Lightly was tendered a surprise on Monday evening, about 60 couple gathered at her home. A delightful evening was spent. The guests left with Mrs. Lightly a handsome set of dishes, indicative of their esteem.
Ed. Hogle and Sam Howard returned last week from their trip to Summersville, Pa., where they went to see Mr. Hogle's brother, Julian, who is sick with pneumonia and erysipelas. They had him taken to a hospital where he is now recovering.

Franklin Academy Notes.
A meeting was held last week at which it was decided to consolidate the different athletic interests into one association. As now constituted, football, basketball, base ball and tennis are encouraged and a suite of rooms is set aside for their management. These with track athletics and perhaps hand ball will be incorporated under one association.
The junior class has chosen white and dark red as its colors.
The March examinations occur March 28-30 inclusive.
The academy basketball team defeated Co. E at the army last week. The game was hotly contested, the score being 9 and 7. The last two points for the academy were won by Gray, who threw a goal in the last quarter minute of play. This game was frequently marred by fouls, one-half of the points being made goals from these.
A new rule has been adopted in reference to "remie" examinations. Any student who averages "C" in any subject during the term may try to re-examine in that subject without any test examination.
Rhetoricals are to be resumed, beginning March 19th. The senior and preparatory students are exempt from these. — JUNIOR.

OF LOCAL INTEREST.
"Simp" Seymour has again signed as pitcher with the New York ball team.
There are at present 30 prisoners confined in the county jail in Caldwell, Warren county.
At the Republican village caucus held in Canton last week L. W. Eldredge was nominated for president.
Carlos Seymour, of Cherusco, was recently granted an increase of pension, which gives him $10 a month.
Miss Grace J. Oaks, of Watertown, a young lady 21 years of age, committed suicide last week, the weapon being a shot gun.
Michael Leonard, an old resident of Ogdensburg, was found dead in bed one morning last week. He was subject to heart affection.

B. O. Jackson, of Boonville, has a herd of thoroughbred and grade Ayrshire cows which during the year 1896 gave 338,631 pounds of milk for which he received $2,197.30.
Last week Cyrus Bassett of Canton, a large man physically, about 50 years old, died from exertion brought on by shovelling snow, according to the statement of his physician.
George Bush, proprietor of the Maplewood Inn, at Massena, gave an "old men's" supper recently. Francis Bennett, who will next month celebrate his 110th birthday, was present and graced the head of the table. He entertained the company with some old French songs.

John Shields, of Carthage, was struck by a passenger train at a crossing in that village last week, and is believed to be fatally injured, his skull being crushed besides other serious injuries. A freight train was approaching on another track the noise of which made it impossible for Mr. Shields to hear the other.
Several hundred bales of hops are reported sold on the Cooperstown market last week at prices ranging from 7 to 10c. At Cobleskill the top price last week for choice hops was 10c, and several small lots were sold at that price. W. E. Smallman sold the balance of his 99 top Sontags at 10 cents. There are still three small lots left unsold in the county of Franklin.
The house of Chas. L'Hullier, a resident of Jefferson county, was burned last week, and the family of four barely escaped. Mr. L'Hullier and his wife slipped on the first step and their two children were on the second floor. He went up stairs to rescue them, and received some severe burns on his face. One of the children he threw out of the window, and the other was carried out. His wife's hair was burned off while trying to get out of the building.

A mortgage for $1,000,000 was filed March 7th with the collector of customs of the Port of Oswegatchie, at Ogdensburg, by Louis Hasbrouck of the Rutland Transit company. The mortgage is given to the Rutland Transit company to secure the bonds of the Rutland Transit company's fleet of eight freight steamers plying between Ogdensburg, Chicago and Duluth, and purchased wharfs and other property of the company in these cities. The mortgage bears a $500 revenue stamp.

A rural daily mail service, covering considerable territory near Waterville, will be put in operation April 2. The carrier will have a full supply of stamps, postal cards, stamped envelopes etc., and also application blanks for money orders which can be sent by the purchaser to the office where the order will be issued and enclosed or he can wait until the next day when the carrier will bring it to him. The carrier will also deliver and receive registered letters. Farmers will then be relieved of that excuse which took so many to town on pleasant days: "I came down to get the mail."

Hon. J. M. Foss, a well-known railroad man in Northern New York, died at his residence in St. Albans on Friday last, aged 81 years. He began as an apprentice on a R. R. machine shop at Concord when only 17, and advanced steadily year by year in his chosen profession. In 1873 he was made superintendent of the motive power and machinery of the Central Vermont system. During this time 50 engines were turned out under the supervision of Mr. Foss, and at that time the company constructed its own locomotives. In 1879 he was promoted to the position of assistant general superintendent, which was followed by a further advancement in 1883 to the office of general superintendent. In 1892 he resigned his position on account of his impaired health, but was induced to accept the position of assistant to the president of the road.

Frank A. Brown, a brakeman on the R. W. & O. was instantly killed last week by being thrown from his train, which had broken apart. The train was equipped with air brakes which set in, and the shock threw Brown from the top of the car to a snow pile on the side and before he could recover himself he had rolled under the wheels. He was dragged about 40 feet and the bones in the left side of his body crushed. As quickly as possible the wheels were moved from his body, but he was dead. A very pathetic scene was witnessed Wednesday at Mr. Brown's home in Watertown. It had been the desire of the deceased that his only child, a little daughter of three years, should be baptized by Rev. Mr. Walton, of Madrid, who officiated at his marriage with the child's mother four years ago in Moira. Rev. Mr. Walton had been summoned to officiate at the funeral, and just before commencing the funeral rites he took the little girl in his arms, and standing beside the coffin and in the presence of the assembled mourners, he sprinkled the water upon her forehead and administered the rite of baptism.

Plattsburgh jail now has twenty-five inmates.
Canadian cheese buyers have offered to contract with factories in St. Lawrence county for the entire season at 12c.
Henry Tafel, of Beaver Falls, thrown from a load of hay one day last week and so seriously injured that he died in a few hours.
The seven-year-old daughter of C. Wilcox, at Indian Lake, Hamilton county, was burned to death last week. The girl's dress caught fire from the stove. She had been playing with kerosene oil.
Herbert G. Geer, of Baltimore, an electrical engineer, and formerly a resident of Ogdensburg, died on Friday last. He was a graduate of the Potsdam Normal and well known in St. Lawrence county.

Assistant Chief Forester W. C. Worts, who has been in town for the past week, is doing some good work. He having found several trespassers in the towns of North Elba, Franklin and Harrietstown, he has secured their removal to the Adirondack Enterprise.
Among the thousand or more bills before the legislature is one that provides that a farm laborer working for a tenant farmer may have a lien on the crops owned by the tenant till his wages are paid by filing a proper notice with the town clerk. This bill has passed the assembly.

The educators of St. Lawrence county have organized a teachers' association and expect to hold their first meeting at Canton March 24. The name proposed for the society is "The St. Lawrence School Masters' Club," a name which appears antiquated and out of date in an up-to-date county.
The attention of local fishermen is directed to the fact that it is unlawful to catch or have in possession pike or pickerel caught in any of the waters of this state during the months of March and April. The penalty for the violation of this is a fine of $25, and $10 additional for every fish so caught or had in possession.

Orlando Blood, one of the oldest settlers of Saranac Lake, who for years owned the old hotel known as Blood's on the site where the Riverside Inn now stands, together with all the land back of the school building through which several streets of the village now pass, died at his residence in that place last Thursday morning, aged 60 years.

The reports that are yearly circulated through the daily newspapers that deer are dying in large numbers in the Adirondacks have again made their appearance, the deep snow making it impossible for deer to feed being given as a reason. A report sent out from Lowville says that three deer have been found in the Adirondacks completely exhausted, and others have died.
Fred Smith, of Lowville, was instantly killed while out fox hunting last week. He had driven one under a pile of wood, and in trying to scare him out, he used the butt of his gun to pry up the wood. In this manner the gun was discharged, and the charge of shot passed through Smith's heart, killing him almost instantly. His clothing took fire and his body was terribly burned.

Two village tickets were nominated in Fort Covington last week. The Republicans put in nomination for president, Walter M. Herrick; trustee, two years, E. O. Forbes; treasurer, Jas. Farquhar; collector, James Moore. A few hours after the above were in the field a Citizens' ticket was nominated made up as follows: President, Walter M. Herrick; trustee, two years, L. P. Lynch; treasurer, G. W. French; collector, James Moore.
It is intended within the course of the next few weeks to call a meeting of base ball players, at which every player in the city who desires to try for a position on the team is expected to be present. The management will endeavor to have representation in this year's team the best talent available in the city, and the proposed meeting will be the first step in that direction. This action will be applauded by all interested in the team.—Ogd. Journal.

Deputy Sheriff Hyland, of Canton, had quite an experience last week with Charles Wait, who with two others was being taken to Dannemora prison. Hyland was compelled to stay over night in Norwood and he placed his charges in the village jail remaining with them himself. Wait and a fellow prisoner were handcuffed together and occupied a separate cell. During the night Wait complained of feeling ill, and the deputy sheriff entered his cell with some water, unlocking Wait's handcuffs to permit him to drink. As Hyland turned to leave the cell Wait pointed upon him and throwing him up on the floor made a desperate effort to obtain his revolver. Wait called upon Martin to assist him, but the latter refused to lend a hand in overpowering the deputy sheriff. Wait was finally overpowered and choked into submission.
President Clement in his management of the Ogdensburg Transit Co.'s line of steamers between Chicago and Ogdensburg is having trouble with the labor agitators of Chicago, where an extensive dock and storehouse are being built under contract. The builder seems to have incurred the displeasure of the trade unionists who threaten to sink the ship and wipe the road off the earth. They say in part: "We are going to find out by what right President Clement, a resident of Vermont, dares to interfere between workmen and their employers in Chicago. Through the Seaman's and Engineers' Unions we will call a strike on the whole grain fleet of the Ogdensburg line. We may even tie up the Rutland railroad of Vermont, a corporation of which Clement also is president. A new railroad to be built by Clement this summer in Vermont also may have all construction work blocked because of the action of his nautical company in Chicago."
