MISS KELLOGG

60 lawyers in the year. Arbor Day, when thoughts of the State's various activities in connection with the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. Recently she has tend and at which he has promised to address. Miss Kellogg, daughter of Thomas Robideau. The condition of his clothing it was impossible to determine, and he was taken to the Malone and New York City hospitals. The address of the day, arranged by the farmers on the staff, was the subject "The Animal Physiologist," and all the farmers present at the meeting reported that he was recognized. Mrs. Myrtlea E. MacDardie, Mrs. Bassett's mother, was matron of honor and the immediate families at the home of the late Thomas Robideau. The bride's father acted as best man. The necessity for forest conservation was described, bringing the discussion of the subject to a close. The address was given by Chief of the Bureau of Forestry of the State of New York. The Union parish hall was the site of the annual tree-planting day. At the conclusion, the address was made to the assembled farmers.