College Okays Ten Hospitals

The Association for the Advancement of Medical Education has approved the plans of twenty-four medical schools for the construction of ten hospitals at a total cost of $15,000,000. Among the schools participating in this plan are Harvard, Yale, and Columbia.

JUNIOR HOMES

The Junior Homemakers of the Junior Home, a group which meets monthly at the home of Mrs. C. E. Deacon, plans to hold a meeting this month. The meeting will be held at 3 p.m. on the first Thursday of the month at the home of Mrs. Deacon. The meeting will feature a talk on the care of young children and will include a demonstration of baby care.

Rubber Coat

Mrs. C. E. Deacon, who is in charge of the Junior Homemakers, will attend the meeting. Mrs. Deacon is a well-known authority on child care and has written several books on the subject. She is also a member of the New York City Board of Education and has served as a consultant to several hospitals.

The Junior Homemakers are a group of volunteers who work to improve the lives of children in the community. They provide resources and support to families, particularly those with young children. The group is part of a larger national organization that focuses on improving the lives of children and families.
