HOLY NAMES NEED GOOD WORKOUT ON 'OPEN' BASKETS

Accustomed to Backboard Baskets, They Must Adopt New Style

By TEN FLAT

Unless the Holy Name five gets right down to a hard and systematic study of the art of shooting for open baskets in direct contract to shooting for backboard baskets, they are going to experience a rather turbulent time of it in the Staten Island Basketball League. This was the general consensus of opinion of those who witnessed the opening league game on Tuesday night, at Downey Hall, in which the Holy Names were trounced by the Richmond Council quintet by a score of 50 to 17.

On their work and general team play the Holy Names shaped up as an exceptionally strong team, and in Mary Cassidy, Carty, Tuley, Speight, Cashman and Meehan appear out of about to give any of the clubs a run on their money. Very probably, too, when they get [illegible] Catechism Hall, tomorrow night, they will show to much better advantage than they did on Tuesday night.

The "open" baskets were really responsible for the poor showing made by the Holy Name five, for they must remove the backboards and make [illegible]

[illegible] the style of shooting to which they are accustomed, and one that [illegible] to be so very different from the style of shooting to which they are accustomed, and make [illegible] a game.

[illegible] made when their [illegible] in the majority of cases [illegible] anywhere in front of the basket. [illegible] where there are [illegible] and the area of the three [illegible] to be found that the best [illegible] from the rim of the [illegible] to call up against a basket [illegible] only found, in the case [illegible] the basket.

[illegible] just what was happening on the floor the Holy Names were making on Tuesday night at the Downey Hall. A large portion of their misses were [illegible] where the ball rolled over the rim, but the backboard bar behind the basket, the backboard bar behind the basket, and then [illegible] out of bounds.

To be [illegible] to be such a difficult matter for the Holy Names to [illegible] they have in their lineup [illegible] proved players who have shown [illegible] style of basketball it ought not to [illegible] them long to get the hang of the style called for in the league games, and when they do they should be right on par with the three [illegible] teams.

Connie Grosjean, manager of the West Brighton Council five, was an interested spectator at the opening league game, Tuesday night, and incidentally, between halves, found time to put the writer on the pan for having made a grievous omission. It appears, that in the lists of eligible players which appeared in these columns a few nights previously, we omitted the names of two players from Connie's list, Fred Tuley and William Roach.

"If I've had one, I've had at least five hundred call me up and bawl me out because I appeared to have dropped those two players."

To partially set at ease the minds of those five hundred," and incidentally, [illegible] who may not yet have reached us, we will say that Parke and Roach most assuredly belong on the West Brighton Council list, and the omission was our mistake.

When it comes to having "color" to [illegible] their personality, our [illegible] will compare favorably with [illegible] from some more than well equipped team. There are the two [illegible] sensations who alone supply a whole [illegible] of "color" to the court, [illegible] especially, has already become [illegible], especially, his aggressive and determined style of play, the "Baron" is also a [illegible] Tackles is also a bear at the [illegible] foul goals. The other evening he cag'd no less than twelve [illegible] of fourteen tries.

In addition to this, the Richmonds have the gigantically titled Malinsky [illegible] of Yuratsky and Brogans and Haggerty and the like which make up about 98 per cent of the league.

"From Tackles to Steve to Malinsky" seems to be the latest approved combination.

Tommy Cosgrove, star of the Richmond Council team, is due to arrive on Staten Island on Sunday from the West Indies, and with his arrival the last cutest drop of [illegible] will be settled. Cosgrove is [illegible] expected on the Richmond Council floor, but at the last [illegible] was only [illegible] by West Indianola. All hands are now waiting for Cosgrove to [illegible] and when they do they should be [illegible] for in the league [illegible] Cosgrove [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
