State troopers are as eager as anyone to hear that the milk strike has come to an end, especially Trooper Donald S. Girven of Salamanca. Girven is attached to the Niagara county detachment, which is seeing service in the Rochester area in the present trouble. The reason is that Girven plans to become a benedict Aug. 15, when he is scheduled to march down the center aisle to wed a Corfu girl. A continuation of the strike may force the trooper to postpone the event.—Rochester Democrat & Chronicle.

New Disease Destroys Elms
A serious disease of elm trees has recently been found in two counties in New York state. The Dutch Elm Disease, it is called. C. N. Abbey, manager of the local Farm Bureau, asks that residents of this county be on the look out for the trouble in order that the progress of the disease may be stopped if possible. Suspected cases should be reported to the Farm Bureau office at Salamanca.

The first symptoms of the Dutch Elm Disease is a sudden wilting of the leaves on part of the crown of the tree. The leaves usually dry, turn yellow or brown and fall from the limbs, leaving them bare. Often affected trees produce numerous suckers along the trunk and at the bases of the larger branches. If a clean cut is made across a twig affected with this disease a brownish discoloration will be seen in the stem wood.

Hike in Quaker Run Section planned by State Park Rangers

The Quaker Run section will again be explored by Allegany State Park hikers this week. A party under the leadership of Ranger V. F. Klemann and Naturalist Irving Knobloch will hike from the Quaker Run Ranger Station to Lookout mountain, along the state line to Willis Valley and back to Quaker Run headquarters, a distance of about four or five miles. The hike is open to the public, hikers meeting at the Ranger Station at 10:00 a. m. Friday morning.

This is the sixth in the series of hikes under the direction of the rangers. Last Friday the hikers took a three-hour jaunt through the Bee Hunter section despite cloudy weather and rain.

Chief Ranger O. R. Lindberg announces that it planned to alternate the districts covered by the hikers—Quaker one week, Red House the next. The final hike of the season will be an all-day, 15 mile trip from Summit tower to Rice brook tower and back to Red House, and will be over country through which there is no trail.

The week-end saw every cabin in the park taken again.

The camp fires are proving as popular this year as heretofore. Campers on Macintosh trail held their second campfire Saturday evening, with about 150 in attendance. A crowd of over 1,000 enjoyed the park campfire at Quaker Run Friday night. C. C. C. camp 33 will hold their next public campfire tonight.

Automobile Dealers Vote to go along; Two Increase Work Forces

Automobile dealers of Salamanca met at L. B. Hartman's garage Friday night and discussed their part in conforming with the National Recovery Act. They agreed to follow the automobile dealers' code, complying with the 40-hour week and minimum wage scale, and to do all in their power to aid recovery.

L. B. Hartman has announced that two extra men will be added to the force Monday, the hours of regular employees having been shortened to conform with the 40-hour week plan, and that the wages of other employees will be increased, and Victor Harrington said three people were being added to the staff at his garage and the wages of other employees increased.

Beauticians of Salamanca have formulated a code of prices and working hours to apply until the national beauticians' code is made public about the first of September, it is announced by Mrs. Charlotte Miller, chairman of the local committee. The prices with few exceptions remain the same as formerly, and are the same as those in Bradford and Olean with one exception, it is said. The code was signed by most of the beauty parlor operators of Salamanca.

REFORESTING EXHIBIT AT LITTLE VALLEY FAIR

State Conservation Department arranges Display on Planting
Among the exhibits at the Cattaraugus County Fair, Little Valley, the week of August 21st to 26th, will be a reforesting panel exhibit, showing in a miniature way typical idle and reforested land as found in the state. The exhibit will be a feature of the Conservation Department arranged by George E. Stevens, supervisor of Forestry exhibits.

The display covers over 40 square feet of floor space, depicting idle land, reforested land, workers planting trees and a painted background depicting an abandoned farm, dilapidated buildings and acres of idle land on one side, and unbroken forests of conical shaped trees on the other.

The reforesting panel is to be displayed at the County fairs, says Mr. Stevens, for the purpose of interesting farmers and land owners in reforestation, thus making personal contact with those interested in setting out trees and giving them first hand information on what kind of trees to plant and how to plant them. He says there are between four and five million acres of idle land within the state, and in Cattaraugus approximately 100,000 acres of idle land that could be devoted profitably to the growing of trees. Trees grown in State Forest Nurseries are sold at cost of production, from $2 to $5 per thousand, to all private planters for reforesting idle land.

Following the Little Valley Fair the exhibit will go to Hamburg, Dunkirk, Elmira, Watkins Glen and Dundee fairs.

Tennessee exports decreased more than $4,000,000 in 1932.

Only One "Salamanca" in United States, Many Cattaraugus Co. Names Duplicated

Names of many of the 50 some towns, villages and two cities in Cattaraugus county are duplicated elsewhere in the United States, but there is no other Salamanca. According to the postal directory, Dayton, N. Y., is but one of 22 Daytons in the country. There are 20 Randolphs, 13 Mansfields, 12 Carrolltons, 11 Freedoms, nine Limestones, eight Leons, and seven places named Versailles.

Salamanca, a town in Indiana, is the closest approach to another Salamanca. There is one other Olean—Olean, Missouri.

Cattaraugus county has nearly a monopoly on the "valleys" in the country, on the basis of incorporation of that word in the name of a postoffice. There are Great Valley and Little Valley, North Valley and South Valley, West Valley—but no East Valley. These are the only such "Valleys" in the entire country, as listed in the postal directory.

Although the hamlet of North Valley has no postoffice, and the section southwest of Randolph is not officially called South Valley, these communities are known by those names. The official South Valley of the country is in Otsego county, this state.
