NEW YORK'S COLLECTOR.

THE LONG FIGHT OVER AT LAST AND THE APPOINTMENT MADE. E. I. Hedden, a County Democracy Man and a Protege of Hubert O. Thompson the Man-Tammany Ignored. Other Appointments.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Contrary to the general belief the next collector of the port of New York has not yet been named. For nearly the best authority he may not be for some weeks more, the situation is difficult. With the manifest impossibility of a compromise candidate from the factions, the selection is thrown between two interests.

His sleep was badly broken until after his morning nourishment was served, which he refused. No special alarm is felt by this set-back. The family think that the salary day is an important matter, and the arts are taking up more gold than they ever did before, and these writers now inform us that the fall of values, instead of being temporary, is in the case of other departments of the world.

He bids Adieu to His Irish Friends. DUBLIN, June 27.—Earl Spencer, the retiring lord lieutenant of Ireland, gave a farewell reception to his friends, and then to his taking his departure for England. The castle was densely thronged with members of the various departments of the government, and numerous friends whom the earl had made since his assuming the duties of lord lieutenant, and who had come to wish the retiring official "God speed."

Eighteen Miners Killed. LANCASTER, Pa., June 27.—William B. Carman, of Philadelphia, for nineteen years and an expert agent on the Pennsylvania railroad, had a curious experience. He was running on the Harrisburg and Lancaster line at 8:10 o'clock, and when near Landisville, about six miles west of Lancaster, an express package dropped to the floor of the car.

An Express Agent's Peculiar Accident. LANCASTER, Pa., June 27.—William B. Carman, of Philadelphia, for nineteen years and an expert agent on the Pennsylvania railroad, had a curious experience. He was running on the Harrisburg and Lancaster line at 8:10 o'clock, and when near Landisville, about six miles west of Lancaster, an express package dropped to the floor of the car.

To Capture or Kill Genoromo. TUCSON, Arizona, June 27.—Gen. Crook has been busily engaged for the past few days robbing and preparing for an Indian campaign in the Sierra Madre, and is about to start for there. It is officially stated that the plan of the campaign is as follows: Gen. Crook, with scouts and infantry, will enter the Sierra Madre and endeavor to capture or kill Genoromo and his followers.

Steel Pens Good Enough for Him. WASHINGTON, June 27.—A saving of $10,000 was effected in the contract for supplying the interior department with stationery, as compared with last year, the award for agency at New York being reduced from $100,000 to $90,000.

A Floating Skating Rink. NEW YORK, July 27.—The latest thing in the way of roller-skating rinks is offered by the new rink at the Hudson river, which will make daily excursions to the Hudson river as far as West Point, with a big band and all the usual attractions.

Found to Be Alive with Trichinae. LINCOLN, Neb., June 27.—Dr. Julius Gerth, Jr., of the meat and animal industry at Washington, came here to investigate the alarming prevalence of disease among hogs. He held an autopsy on the body of a hog supposed to have recovered from the disease.

The Vice-President's Movements. PITTSBURGH, Mass., June 27.—After the reception Vice-President Hendricks repaired to the Homestead Inn, where he spent the night. To-day he drove to Lenox and Stockbridge, and then to New York over the Hudsonian road at 4:15 P. M.

The Standard Oil Octopus. SAN FRANCISCO, June 27.—A report is published in The Chronicle that the Standard Oil Company has acquired possession of the Continental Oil and Transportation Company. The latter company has a contract for a number of years to supply the various points in California.

Great Fires in Maine. AUGUSTA, June 27.—The remains of Capt. Phelps, late minister to Peru, have been embalmed and will be brought to Washington in charge of the naval attaché of the legation at Lima.

GEN. GRANT NOT SO WELL.

He Has a Wretched Night, and Feels Languid. Mr. Mcgregor, June 27.—Though he dozed after retiring, Gen. Grant did not sleep comfortably after midnight. The physician attended him once during the night and again at 6 o'clock. At 11 o'clock the general had not yet been dressed. Since retiring he has slept six hours. During the past two hours the mucous secretions have increased, and expectoration, which has a tendency to weaken the patient, has been greater.

Philadelphia, June 27.—The Press publishes an interview with Andrew Carnegie, the iron king, at Pittsburg, upon the present state of the State Savings Institution in 1877. Carnegie differs in two points from the other depression of which I have had experience. The first is that it is not confined to America, but is worldwide. This would imply a world-wide depression.

BUSINESS DEPRESSION.

Andrew Carnegie Talks on the Philosophy of Trade. CHICAGO, June 27.—A motion was made in Judge Moran's branch of the circuit court that revives the features attending the failure of the State Savings Institution in 1877, which was regarded as infallible. Its president, D. D. Spencer, sailed for Europe, presumably with all the cash that was left in the safe.

Why a Marriage Was Postponed Four Years. MADISON, Ind., June 27.—Mrs. Dorman, better known as Miss Nancy McGee, was married Thursday to a crippled soldier named John Wood. The ceremony was taken out in 1850, but the ceremony has waited for Wood's pension, $2,180 cash town and $50 per month.

Rebellion in a Military Academy. COLUMBIA, S. C., June 27.—The cadets of the State Military academy, in Charleston, South Carolina, were recently promoted to an officer of the cadet corps, and as soon as the order was promulgated the entire corps, with the exception of about twenty, openly refused to obey and respect the order. Cadet Schriener has always had a bad record as a soldier and a gentleman, commanding the respect of the officers of the academy during his entire connection with the institution.

Senator Brown Offends the Hebrews. ATLANTA, Ga., June 27.—A sensation was caused in the opera house at Washington by the occasion of the commencement exercises of the Atlanta girls' high school, and Senator Brown was the guest of the day. Upon the stage was the Hon. D. E. May, a prominent Hebrew, and two out of five of the honor girls were daughters of Hebrews. The announcement of which caused the rebuff. The board of visitors has been summoned to investigate.
