THE JAPANS LOSE TWO WARSHIPS

Battleship Hits Mines and a Cruiser Vicks in Collision.

HE ULTIMATE CONSEQUENCES of the recent Japanese move that has not cowed the United States are appearing in the form of two war-ships that have been lost in a collision between the battle-ships Mikasa and Sashiri, according to British reports.

While cruising off Port Arthur, the Mikasa and Sashiri ran aground, the heavy cruiser being sunk by its own explosion. The Mikasa, which was not damaged, radioed the news of the collision to Port Arthur.

THE COLLISION occurred near the mouth of the Yalu river and above at Liaotung, and it is feared that the Mikasa, with a crew of 800 men, has been lost.
