Reagan nixes talks on nuclear test ban

BY NORMAND D. SANDLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan has decided not to reopen negotiations on a comprehensive ban on nuclear explosive testing and to concentrate instead on getting the nuclear test ban treaty ratified.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.

The decision, made by Reagan during a Monday meeting with the State Department's Nuclear Non-Proliferation Board, also blocked a State-Defense Board meeting later this week on the possibility of a comprehensive test ban treaty.