Threat of protests may cancel big AIDS meeting

By ROBERT D. MACNEAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard University is getting ready for next year's big international AIDS meeting by hiring a Boston firm to handle a possible protest against a proposal to exclude 400 people with AIDS or infected with HIV from the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.

The meeting is to be held next June at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government. Harvard and other organizations have already told city officials that they would like to host the conference.