Music, no preaching makes perfect 4th of July service

FALLS CHURCH, Va. — The Falls Church, after which this town is named, is a historic church that serves as a symbol of the nation’s Christian heritage.

The service on the Fourth of July with nearby Columbia Baptist Church was a way to remember the country’s religious roots.

The service was described as “a celebration of our heritage and a reminder of the role of faith in our nation’s history.”

END OF SERVICE: Children work on craft projects on the last day of the Bible study. First Baptist Church. Later in the day, the children presented elements of what they had learned during the week-long program to parents and family members.
