

The Marion Enterprise

"Truth is the Highest Thing a Man May Keep."

VOL. I.

MARION, N. Y., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1880.

NO. 9.

The Marion Enterprise

PUBLISHED

Every Saturday Morning

R. D. CURTIS.

ADVERTISING. Seventy-five cents per square for first insertion, and fifty cents for every subsequent week.

Book and Job Printing Office

Plain and Fancy Job Printing on Short Notice.

Letter-Heads, Note-Heads, Bill-Heads, Circulars, Cards, Shipping Tags, Envelopes, Blanks, Posters, etc., done on the most reasonable terms.

Curious Epitaphs.

Here lies John Adams, who received a thump Right on the forehead, from the parish pump... Here lies John, who with Mary his bride... Here lies John, who with Mary his bride... Here lies John, who with Mary his bride...

My Wants.

I want not wealth—the yellow gold that chills the soul like Arctic cold. That turns to ice the warmest heart. And withers all its better part.

There were old-fashioned games for the children in the afternoon, and a seven o'clock tea. After tea Rodney and his friends went out for a stroll, and when at seven o'clock the Thanksgiving party broke up the young men, and not returned.

THREE THANKSGIVINGS.

Four years ago this present Thanksgiving the Judge Cleveland's house of Co. N. H. was the scene of unusual festivities. The most extensive preparations had been made for the comfort and pleasure of some thirty or forty invited guests.

everything else I have had to bear put together. Oh! my boy, you will never know how cruel and wicked it seems to me to put temptation before a young man and then threaten to disinherit him if he succumbs to it.

There was a rumormongering about a young man and woman who were engaged to be married. The young man was a wealthy farmer, and the woman was the daughter of a wealthy merchant.

me to find my son," and all understood from this that the property—the whole or a third—was to be her but a trifling consideration.

Sarah drew up the table and lit the kettle over the glowing fire, with the letters streaming down her cheeks.

Strange Discoveries in a Cave.

The Silver Cliff (Col.) Prospector of a late date has the following account of a strange experience undergone by three miners who took refuge in a cave during a storm.

Removal of Hair from the Face.

The Scientific American says: We frequently have inquiries, chiefly from ladies, who find their beauty marred, as they think, by growth of hair on the lips or other portions of the face.

Oil on Troubled Waters.

Some very remarkable experiments at the entrance of the North Harbor, Peterhead, are described by the Dundee Advertiser as having been attended by very satisfactory results.

Without an E.

It is well known that the letter E is used more than any other letter in the English alphabet. Each of the following verses contains every letter of the alphabet except the letter E.

The Farmer and the Painter.

One of those men who go about the country discharging duties by painting advertisements on rocks, trees, etc., has been giving his experience to a New York Sun reporter.

A New Test for Trichinae.

A Holstein peasant, unacquainted with the requisite instruments of precision, has devised for himself a new test for the presence of trichinae in pork.

Tipping into Matrimony.

A nice little romance appears in the columns of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican. One of the most unobtrusive in that city, while purring to the depot to take a train, tripped, and so gracefully recovered herself as to win the admiration of a very substantial young man.

General Gardfield is forty-nine years old.

His mother is still alive, in her eightieth year.