JAMES BROTHERS.

THE ONLY TOLD WHAT SHE HAD HEARD.

Sister Anna was scolding one of her children when she entered the kitchen and was upon her knees before the table, finishing her lard-pudding hampage. "I don't believe any one ever had such contrary youngsters as yours," she said, "and I don't believe any one ever had such a wicked mother as I have."

"I would like to see the child that was so wicked as to scold its mother," she said, "and I would like to see the mother that was so wicked as to scold her child."

"I would like to see the child that was so wicked as to scold its mother," she said, "and I would like to see the mother that was so wicked as to scold her child."

OUR YOUNG READERS.

SONG FOR A BIRTHDAY BOY.

Once upon a winter night,
When many a soul was sleeping,
A little boy was born,
And his name was Charles.

Once upon a winter night,
When many a soul was sleeping,
A little boy was born,
And his name was Charles.

Once upon a winter night,
When many a soul was sleeping,
A little boy was born,
And his name was Charles.

Once upon a winter night,
When many a soul was sleeping,
A little boy was born,
And his name was Charles.
