The first electric storm of the season passed over this section Sunday evening, and was of unusual severity. The flashes of lightning and crashes of thunder were at times terrific and many of the bolts seemed to strike in the immediate neighborhood but as far as can be learned no fires resulted although it is said that the tenement house of George Schoon, who resides about three miles south, was struck but little damage was done. Several telephone poles were struck in different parts of the town. The electrical display was accompanied by torrents of rain.

Mr. Hayward arose early and soon after 9 o'clock he started with his daughter for his first ride in an automobile. He appeared happy in his new experience and was not much fatigued after returning at noon from a trip to Rochester, including a tour of Seneca Park and calls on several friends. Dinner was served at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lusk in honor of the occasion. Mr. Hayward taught school after his residence in this village, and he thinks that there is but one of his pupils living now in this town, Nathan Welch, who is nearly a nonagenarian.

Pittsford Farms' Creamery. Pittsford Farms' Creamery is again in running order after lying idle about ten years. The creamery was built in the year 1892 by Mrs. Hawley for the private use at the Pittsford farms, which then had a herd of the finest Jersey cattle in this section, but soon after the state authorities claimed that the herd had tuberculosis and nearly the whole herd was killed by the order of the state authorities and then the creamery was abandoned until this spring when Orla J. Welch, the mail carrier, leased the property of Mrs. Hawley. After several days of hard labor, Mr. Welch, the manager, states that he has thoroughly renovated the building and contents and April 16th, he opened up for business. The building is quite large, being something like 40x60 ft., and is situated in the rear of the Hawley residence. It is run by a stationary engine of twelve horse power with all the improved machinery for making first class creamery butter which includes the Imperial improved sharpless turbine separator with a capacity of 3,000 lbs. of milk or approximately 300 gallons per hour. The churn used is the box churn with a capacity of 350 gallons of cream. The milk is furnished by the farmers of this vicinity and when brought here is weighed and tested so each receive pay in proportion to the richness of the milk. The gravity system is used here which saves a lot of lifting and carrying of milk and cream. It is expected that soon milk will be shipped in by the trolley from eastern points. There is a machine butter worker of a capacity of about 200 lbs. The butter is made into three different styles of prints, individual squares of sixteen to the pound marked P. F., the monogram print of four to the pound marked P. F., and the pound print with the words Pittsford Farms stamped upon them. Edward Taylor has charge of the butter-making. Pure well water is used for all the washing of the butter so as to assure the customers that nothing but pure wholesome butter will be made at the creamery. Attached to this building is an ice house and cooler each with a capacity of 200 tons of ice. As readers of the Mail, we wish the manager, Orla J. Welch, a prosperous year with the new enterprise.
