WEST NEW BRIGHTON, N. Y., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1910.

GAYNOR BRAVELY FIGHTING DEATH.

New York's Mayor May Survive Assassin's Bullet.

Mayor William J. Gaynor of New York, who lies in St. Mary's hospital, Hoboken, where the bullet of James J. Gallagher, his would-be assassin, sent him, is expected to recover.

The mayor is not suffering greatly at present. He has not lost consciousness since Gallagher's revolver was discharged into the back of his neck on the promenade deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. He is keenly alive to the nature of the trial that he faces. Insisting that the physicians should tell him just how the score stands between himself and death, today

Mayor W. J. Gaynor.

Gaynor heard their report and seemed satisfied. He knows that he must match his strength against that of death and is making a brave fight for life.

As for Gallagher, the faded Italian man with the shoulders of a bull and all the insolence of past years of exile on the fringe of political swamps in his eyes, he hangs his shoulders and sweats when told that the mayor of New York is no dead man on his side in the Hudson county jail in Jersey City, where he is confined without bail to await the action of the grand jury, and he says:

"Well, I'm sorry I didn't kill him right off. I hope he cranks. I find to get him, and if I didn't really get him that's not my fault."

Gallagher crouched behind Mayor Gaynor while the mayor was bidding farewell to his friends on the deck of the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse in the expectation of a pleasant voyage and vacation.

"You're stolen my bread and butter, you," yelled Gallagher, as he shot. The bullet entered the mayor's neck and lodged near the base of the tongue. It missed severing the jugular vein to the fraction of an inch.

The would-be assassin was seized by Street Commissioner Edwards who, in the excitement of the moment, gave him a terrible beating. Edwards was a former Princeton university football star.

Gallagher, a Tammany ward heeler, had been discharged from his position as dock watchman, where he had received $2 a day. He had been found guilty of neglect of duty and insubordination. He determined to kill Mayor Gaynor because of the loss of his job merely because the mayor had not complied with his demand that he be restored to his position.

Whether the starvation was self-inflicted or was due to her inability to eat is a question. Dr. Roth indicated that the patient might have eaten nourishing food some days ago if she had wished to, but that eating would have been impossible for her during the last day or so. Warden Matthews and other jail officials said that the prisoner would have taken food if she had been able to. Others who are in a position to know say that the woman was deliberately trying to end her life by starvation.

An effort was made by the jail officials to have Mrs. Caroline R. Martin and Mrs. Mary W. Snod, the two other sisters, locked up at the county jail across the street, at the bedside when the case came. They called upon Deputy Sheriff Hottel at the court house to get permission, but he would not approve unless the jail people got the consent of the doctor.

The doctors had left several minutes before and the jail authorities could not find them. In consequence the two sisters had to remain in their cells while their sister died in a building just across the street.

It is extremely doubtful whether Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Snod will ever be brought to trial. It is to be expected here that the case will be hushed up. The prosecution's case centered in Miss Wardlaw by reason of her having been with Osey Stead in the East Orange house during her last days. It was Miss Wardlaw who took Osey Stead to East Orange from New York. She rented the house and was in it when Osey Stead's death came to the attention of the authorities. She told the police of the death.

The three sisters indicated for the murder of Osey W. M. Stead in East Orange, N. J., died of starvation in the house of detention in Newark, N. J., where she was a prisoner.

SCENE FROM THE HILARIOUS MUSICAL COMEDY, "M'FADDEN'S FLATS."

"McFadden's Flats" is announced by the Bayonne Opera House for the first attraction of their regular season opening from August 17th to August 20th, and remaining for two days, with an matinee on Saturday at prices ranging from 15 cents to 50 cents; box seats 75 cents and $1.00.

The story deals with life on the "East Side" in New York and its many amusing situations. It has been entirely revised and new features added in keeping with the policy of the management to bring the attraction up-to-date for this season. The numerous vaudeville features are of a high order and all the characters are rendered by artists of note, headed by Joseph J. Sullivan and Annie Hart, and surrounded by an attractive chorus.

A new feature that will interest the theatre patrons of Staten Island which has been established by the Bayonne Opera House is the advance sale of tickets at F. W. Kerr's drug store, 1916 Terrace, Port Richmond, where tickets for every evening's performance will be on sale daily until 6 p. m., after which the sale for the following evening will go on. The sale of the above attraction opens Wednesday, August 17th.

FALLING AEROPLANE CRUSHES SPECTATORS

of the opening of the ten day aviation meet at Astbury Park, N. J. It was the first time since aviation began to draw big crowds of onlookers that an aeroplane has tumbled down on the spectators.

Of the seven persons besides Brookins who were injured, George Burnett of Spring Lake, fourteen years old, is in the most serious condition. He was crushed beneath the framework of the motor part of the main plan of the machine. His skull was fractured and his hip broken. He was removed to the Long Branch hospital in an automobile that had been parked a few feet from the wreckage. The boy probably will die. All the others will recover.

When Brookins was found beneath the frame of the torn plane fabric and splintered framework and wires lay on the sod of the aviation field with his face in a pool of blood and his right hand still grasping a steering lever. He was thought to be dead as he was dragged out of the wreck.

The doctors say that a slight examination showed that Brookins has a broken nose, a severely injured head and face, his eyes are closed and his general position about the body. The doctors do not expect fatal results from his fall.

The aeroplane fallen ten feet further back to the flight it would have undoubtedly crashed upon the grand stand crowd.

WORLD'S FAIR IS SWEEP BY FLAMES.

Fire Damage Is Estimated at More Than $100,000,000.

Estimates of the damage done by the fire at the world's fair at Brookins, Boston, vary from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

A spark falling into inflammable material in the telegraph building kindled flames which, driven by a high wind, swept rapidly in all directions.

The fire and attachments of soldiers, called quickly upon the scene found themselves halted by the very flames which carried burning cables in all parts of the grounds.

The crowd here had piled upon Men, women and children fought madly to escape. The exit to the main building with the stopping masses and many a crowd of thousands had to be huddled and

Only two lives were lost in the disaster, but hundreds of persons were injured.

IMPRISONED WOMAN STARVES TO DEATH.

Miss Virginia Wardlaw, Accused of Murder, Famishes.

Miss Virginia O. Wardlaw, one of the three sisters indicated for the murder of Osey W. M. Stead in East Orange, N. J., died of starvation in the house of detention in Newark, N. J., where she was a prisoner.

Mrs. Margaret Emerson McKim, the well known society woman, has received an absolute divorce from Dr. Smith Hothell McKim. The divorce was granted at Reno, Nev., without a question by Judge Pike after she had told her story accusing Dr. McKim of cruelty and drunkenness. Mrs. McKim testified that she was married on Dec. 30, 1902, in Baltimore, lived at Irvington from May, 1904, to July, 1905, summing at Newport, and went to New York in October, 1908.

A meeting of all the Rockefeller's has been arranged for Sept. 9 at Newburgh, N. Y., and it is hoped that John D. Rockefeller will attend, although he has not accepted the invitation positively. Those invited are direct descendants of Johann Peter Rockefeller, who came to America in 1723. A history of the Rockefeller family will be read, giving the origin of the family name and a history of it shown from 1680.

The state Democratic convention held at Galveston, Tex., adjourned after ratifying the primary nomination of Oscar Branch Colquhoun for governor and endorsing Senator Joseph W. Bailey for president in 1912. The issue of the campaign prohibition was ruled in the rush to place the senator back in power by the leader of the party in Texas. Any opposition to Bailey was hushed down.

GENERAL HAPPENINGS

The Esperanto conference, with about 1,000 delegates from all parts of the world, is in session at Washington. The proceedings are entirely in Esperanto, "the universal language." Dr. L. L. Zamenhoff of Warsaw, Poland, the creator of the language, is present. John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics, is president of the American Esperanto association. Dr. Zamenhoff made his opening address, after which the session was devoted by the Esperantists to conferences and special sessions.

Mayor Marshall of Ocean City, has called for 2500 men to act as volunteer police in the present campaign. This action came after the dispatching of thirty two regular policemen who refused to do strike duty. The number of the force have been notified that the policy of placing the men on the cars will very probably be continued. The most remarkable situation in the history of strikes in the developed when the policemen were suspended by Chief of Police Curran for open mouthing. Mayor Marshall, the main or men and that he does not blame the numerous policemen for refusing to go on the cars. And yet, menacingly rebuke in the city after midnight.

SPORTING AFFAIRS

Joe Gans, the negro pugilist, who was once champion light weight of the world, died from consumption at his home in Baltimore, some time ago Gans went to Phenix, Ariz., to try to recover his health, but the disease had too firm a hold and would not be healed. When Gans saw that this last light of his was hopelessly lost he determined to stave off the end until he could reach his mother and his own home in Baltimore.

Combe Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, would like to see a little more hitting, and he thinks the best way to bring it about would be to let the ball hit place of three. Four balls and four strikes, Mack holds would be more effective in placing the batsman on an equal footing with the pitcher than any other change that could safely be made, unless it be to abandon the rule which calls for a strike on a batsman for fouling the ball.

Smo Langford says he will challenge the winner of the Lang-Kaufman bout and will wager $2,500 that he can knock either of them out inside of ten rounds, but Langford's color opinion recently was lost in Philadelphia last week. If he had beaten Kaufman then he would have a challenge which he would have to accept. As it is now, Johnson says Langford was afraid of Kaufman and is no longer worthy of passing rounder's action.

Jack Johnson, the champion heavyweight pugilist, declared in Chicago that he would not fight again for a year. Although the champion was scheduled to appear in court in that city on account of an arrest for speeding, he will shake the dust of the Windy City from his feet for some time and said he had left a bond for his appearance and would be represented by an attorney.

Paddy Sullivan outroughed Mat Wells of England in their ten round bout at the Olympic Athletic club in New York. After the first round, which was about even, Sullivan forged to the front and gained a lead in every round by landing the harder and cleaner punches.

Frank E. Burroughs of Victoria, Australia, has set a record in a continuous swim of the Great barrier in 2 minutes 30 seconds, 200 yards in 3 minutes 30 seconds and crossed the 300 meters mark in 3 minutes 12 seconds.
