A new band stand has been erected at the intersection of Main and Washington streets, where the future Saturday evening concerts will be held. This new location will be much preferred to the former place on the covered hotel veranda.

Sunday was Memorial Day for the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs and the occasion will be remembered long after similar days have been forgotten. At the appointed hour members of the two organizations assembled at their hall at which place the line of march was formed for Liberty Park cemetery. There the exercises and decoration of graves took place.

Weather permitting the Erie band will appear in the second concert tomorrow night. The first of the series was a most complete success from every point of view as was evidenced by the approval of the crowd at every turn. Between 1500 and 2000 people gathered to listen to a most superb musical program. The program, starting at 8:30 and continuing until 10 o'clock, was of such a varied nature as to satisfy all tastes. The Erie band is an excellent organization worth coming miles to hear.

Why Use Sterling
Seamless Red Tubes?

Sterling Seamless Red Tubes are pure gum tubes—a section will float in water—only the very highest quality of pure rubber will float, and only the highest quality of rubber is fit to go into a tube which is expected to give service.

Each Sterling Tube is made of a sheet of rubber rolled over upon itself four times, producing a cross grained lamination, giving strength and toughness otherwise not procurable. Do you know that there is a definite grain in a sheet of rubber—that it will tear more easily in one direction than in another?

When a Sterling Tube is punctured, the air comes out of the hole, but the tube is not torn to pieces. Because of this, and because of the quality and thickness of the rubber, the tube can be repeatedly repaired. Because of the quality, the thickness, the lamination, Sterling Tubes stay alive for a long time. When they must be removed from the tire, they are not shapeless, dead, rotten things. Sterling Tires exposed to light and air for five years have been found satisfactorily serviceable.

They are fairly high priced simply because the best quality of pure rubber gum is high priced. If you are going to make, or use, a thoroughly good, serviceable tube, you cannot get away from the cost. It is, practically all right in the rubber.

Because of the method of construction, Sterling Tubes have no seam to split—a pin hole or air bubble in one thickness is covered by the other three, so there are no slow leaks. The splice, which in other tubes is the weakest point, is in Sterlings the strongest, because it is vulcanized, not cemented, and because the valve patch is vulcanized over the splice. This is an exclusive, patented feature.

All tires look pretty much alike, and you cannot tell by examination what is inside of them. But anybody who will use his eyes, and his hands, and his intelligence, can judge the quality of a tube.

We suggest that you compare a Sterling Tube with others.

We believe it is impossible to make a tube at any price, with any different material, or with different construction, that will give as many miles per dollar as will Sterling Tubes. They will make even a poor tire give better service.
