HIGHER GAS RATE LEGAL BATTLE SCORES ONE POINT FOR LACKAWANNA AND OTHER COMMUNITIES SEEKING PROBE OF FAS COSTS

Fight of Lackawanna Buffalo and other communities of Erie County against proposed higher gas rate, had one favorable turn for the cities and towns last week when in a supplementary memorandum to the New York State Public Service Commission, Commissioner Burritt set forth several reasons why the rate base should be brought down to date by a reopening of the proceedings in which the Iroquois Gas Corporation of Buffalo seeks permission to increase its rates for all gas consumed in its Western New York territory.

While the legal department of the City of Buffalo is directing the battle against the grant of petition for increased rates, William Brennan, Jr., town attorney of Cheektowaga and Corporation Counsel Weinstein of Lackawanna are right in the fight to the end in an effort to protect the gas consumers of this community.
