SEEKING A PERMANENT PEACE THROUGH THREAT OF WAR

Theodore Marburg. Though Still a Pacifist, Says That German Defeat Alone Can Assure the Tranquility of the World and Tells of Plans of the League to Enforce Peace

By EDWARD MARSHALL

No plan of war or peace ever offers an adequate guarantee, because it is impossible to estimate the reactions of the various nations to action and counteraction, but a forecast of the probable outcome of the present situation offers sufficient assurance to make the business of pacifism a success. The United States, as a party to the World War, is now in a better position to make peace, and the League of Nations is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace. The League of Nations, it is said, is the only possible guarantor of peace, and the United States is the only possible guarantor of the peace.