The Evening Post.

BUFFALO.

MONDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 15.

☞ The business office of the Evening Post is at No 7 West Seneca Street, on the third floor, where all orders may be left.

☞ Single copies of the Evening Post can be obtained at the office. A liberal discount made to News men.

☞ See first page for reading matter.

☞ See Telegraph on third page.

☞ Railroads East and West.—The Buffalo and Rochester Railroad have got fairly working on their new straight track between this city and Batavia, and are as usual carrying full trains of passengers both ways. The freight business over this road is rapidly increasing if we can be allowed to judge by the amount of goods in the Freight Depot or the number of loaded cars on their tracks.

The Buffalo and New York city road are hard at work upon the old track between here and Attica, spreading the rails to suit their wide cars, and will be able to run into the city direct from Hornellsville by the end of this week at farthest. They have the frame of their passenger Depot up and will soon have it covered in. Their Machine Shop an immense building at the corner of Exchange and Lousiana Streets is nearly completed. They will open a large passenger and freight business as soon as the wide cars can run through.

The western road is doing a good business between this city and Erie, and the last gap between Buffalo and Cleveland was to have been filled up to-day.

For a few weeks past it has taken a good portion of travel from here west, but the serious inconveniences and annoyances to which passengers have been subjected by the grasping avarice of the publicans and stage proprietors on the few miles between the Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads, have made it anything but a pleasant route. When the iron link is supplied by which stops and changes to horse-power will be rendered unecessary, this will be one of the most pleasant routes in the country. During the Winter and Spring especially it will find ample employment.

☞ The Grand Jury of Alleghany county has unanimously recommended a subscription on the part of that county, of $1,000,000 to the Alleghany Valley Railroad Company. This was done in accordance with a provision of law, which requires such recommendation to authorize the County Commissioners to make the subscription.

The Alleghany Valley Railroad is the one to extend from Pittsburgh to the Pennsylvania State line near Olean, where it is to be met by the Buffalo and Pittsburgh Road which has of late received considerable attention in our city.

☞ Pittsburgh and Buffalo.—What has become of the railroad which a few weeks since claimed so much of the public attention? Election being over our merchants and property owners have time to devote to projects for increasing the growth of our city and enhancing the value of their property.

☞ The Concert this Evening.—All the appearances indicate that the Concert of Ole Bull, this evening, will be the most brilliant thing of the kind this season. Nobody needs to be told of his fame as the greatest violinist since the days of Paganini, and as it is probable this will be the last opportunity for hearing him in Buffalo, there is no doubt about his calling out all who appreciate the highest style of musical art. The singing of the young Patti and the splendid execution of Strakosch on the piano will make pleasing additions to the entertainment.

☞ American Hall.—A Dr. Weiting commences a series of lectures on Physiology illustrated by manikins, figures, &c., at American Hall this evening. The lectures are well spoken of by several of the Eastern papers.

☞ Mr. Burchard, a minister of the Presbyterian faith who was some fifteen years ago one of the celibrities of Western New York has been for some weeks in the city.—He has not as yet created so much excitement as he was wont to do in earlier days when the town was smaller, but his sermons yesterday at the Free Baptist Church (formerly Dr. Lord's) were listened to by large audiences. His manner and style though not quite so vehement as of old is still something more lively than that of the clergymen in our city.

☞ A young man named Timothy H. Paul, clerk at the Lovejoy House, was arrested on Friday for embezzling letters addressed to the care of that house, and committed to jail in default of $1500 bail to appear.

☞ The sermon last evening by Dr. Lord on the death of Calhoun, Clay and Webster was listened to by all who could find seats in the ample limits of the Central Presbyterian Church. It was a fitting tribute of respect to the memory of the three giants whose recent loss the nations mourns. We hope to see it published.

The Slave Case.—The case now pending in the Superior Court of New York, and awaiting the decision of Judge Paine in regard to the claim of certain slaves to their freedom, involves a principle of a good deal of interest and importance. The question is very simple, and is purely one of law. It seems that a Mrs. Lemmon, a citizen of Virginia, and the owner of sundry slaves under the laws of that State, brought them into the State of New York, on their way to Texas.—It is claimed on behalf of the slaves, that being in the State of New York, the laws of which do not recognize slavery, they become free and they cannot be claimed or held as slaves. The case has nothing to do with the Fugitive Slave Law, inasmuch as these slaves did not escape from service, but were brought, voluntarily, by their owner into the State of New York, and within the operation of its laws.

Since the above was in type we notice that the decision is announced as in favor of the freedom of the slaves.

The resignation of Mr. Ewbank late commissioner of Patents seems to furnish matter of rejoicing to most of the papers which have noticed it, with the solitary exception as far as we have seen of the New York Tribune. It is the general testimony that his administration of the duties of this important office has been singularly inefficient and vexatious to all concerned in their discharge.—The appointment is said to have been confirmed on a Mr. Hodge of Verment, and we hope he may be found to possess the important requisites of honesty, sound judgment and a business capacity to conduct with desatch the business of the office.

"Manifest Destiny."—The news from the Isthmus of Panama indicates that the inhabitants there are considering the expediency of declaring it an independent state, or else of annexing it to some more powerful country. The government at Bogota has acted liberally in opening the matter for discussion, and its course meets with general commendation.

Bills have recently passed the Mississippi Legislature, prohibiting the sale of ardent spirits in several counties and townships upon a vote of a majority of the people, requesting the boards of police to withhold license.

☞"Winter lingers in the lap of" autumn to-day and manifests a strong disposition there to linger till the warm breezes of spring give him his walking papers. The snow lay about two inches thick on the roofs and sidewalks this morning, and except in exposed situations there it lies about the same yet. Meanwhile the sky is cold and black, and thick banks of clouds promise more of the raw material for sleighing between this and Thanksgiving day.

☞ New Schooner.—We noticed a new schooner in the creek this morning, owned by O. Bugbee and called the Aldebaran. She was built for Mr. B. at one of the ports on Lake Huron, and is a fine looking craft.

Conversions to the Roman Church.—Frederick W. Pollard, A. M., for some time Rector of the Episcopal Church at Nautucket and more recently the associate of the late Dr. Croswell of the Church of the Advent, and the Rev. E. M. P. Wells, of St. Stephen's Church, Boston, were lately received at St. Anne's Church, in that city, by Dr. Forbes.

Zinc for Ship Building.—It is stated that a small vessell of about 180 tons burthen, to be called the 'Comic le Hon,' has been constructed at Nauts, of zinc, by way of testing the adaptation of that metal to ship building.

Yankee Enterprise in South America.—By the schooner Lamartine, which cleared the port of Boston, 4th inst., for Cumana, Venezuela, a party of adventurers go out, furnished with a complement of machinery, for the purpose of raising treasure from the wreck of the Spanish vessel "San Pedro," which was lost off Venezuela, more than a century ago. It is supposed that the vessel had about $9,000,000 on board, which was sent by the home government to pay off the troops in her dominions in the new world.

Some two years since, a portion of the present party discovered the wreck, and with the aid of a little apparatus for the purpose, succeeded in raising about $25,000, and cleared the wreck so that they now anticipate operations will be comparatively easy. A steam engine will be carried out, and also a diving machine of ingenious construction, newly invented by Mr. James A. Whipple, together with submarine armor, and all other apparatus deemed necessary for the most scientific fathoming of the "boundless deep." Should this enterprising company secure the whole of their supposed vastly rich prize, they will not only suddenly become millionaires in wealth, but millionaires literally "of the first water."

Disappearance of Small Pox in Boston—For nearly a year past, scarcely a death has occurred of the loathsome disorder, small pox, where in former years the mortality has amounted to a hundred or more. This desired result is the consequence of the thorough system of vaccination required by the city authorities.

A few drops of creosote on brown paper put in the holes of rats, will drive them away. Nux vomica and oatmeal is a sure poison.

A book called "British Pomology" has appeared, containing a description of 942 kinds of apples. All these are traceable to the common crab.

The Force of Early Impressions.

One of the great problems of modern times relates to the best mode of training the young, so that in after life they may become useful, provident industrious and patriotic citizens. The old adage that 'prevention is better than cure,' is especially applicable in this class. The seeds of virtue, when implanted in the young mind and heart, seldom fail to produce good fruit; and so the seeds of vice are almost invariably productive of bitterness and crime. Nothing is more powerful than early recollections and impressions They live, linger, and exercise an influence in after life. The first lesson in morality and religion, of a fond and devoted mother, the early and earnest teachings of a kind and affectionate father, are never entirley forgotten. Life may be chequered and changeful, its paths may be varied by cloud and sunshine; adversity may dakren one day, and prosperi- dazzle another; and yet in the calm and tranquil moments and meditation and reflection —and there few who have no such moments —the scenes of early youth will rise in the mirror of memory, and with them a thousand gentle and tender recollections and associations. Youth we repeat, is the season of powerful impressions. It is then that the nature is pliable and the character unformed. It is then that the world has not chilled the current of feeling, has not corrupted the heart and made it mercenary and selfish. How important then, that the thoughts the habits, and the tastes of the young should be properly trained and directed! How many thousands in our great cities might be saved who are now misled, misguided, misdirected but who once astray, find it impossible to recover the right path!

We have ever believed that the majority of criminals of this country were the creatures of circumstances the victims of ignorance and example, of profligate hard-hearted, or negligent and intemporate parents. How hard then, the lot—how bitter the fate of the wretched young beings to whom we refer! Driven into the world with false views of life and its duties, tempted to go astray, and with no moral power sufficient to control and curb their passions and prejudices, they soon commit some excess or violate some law and thereafter their course is rapid and downward. Friendless and hopeless, they are punished and banned, and life thus becomes a wreckless and bitter struggle. Temptations beset them on all sides. Want has its temptations, ignorance has its temptations neglect has its temptations, while the criminal having once gone astray, has the brand of the convict fixed upon his character, and is peculiarly and emphatically liable to temptations which are scarcely conceivable to the upright and the prosperous. The young offenders of our day might, could and should, in a majority of cases, be saved. They have been misled and only require to be directed aright. Already many institutions have been organized with benevolent objects, and the results have been every way encouraging. Nevertheless there are thousands of young, the idle and the dissolute in our great cities, who are permitted to go on step by step, without any restraining voice and who only require their moral natures to be strengthened and their social condition improved, to change them into better, more thoughtful more responsible beings. The field is a wide one—who will venture to enter it with a view to so noble and salutary a reform?—Pennsylvania Inquirer.

A Glance at Louis Napoleon.—The editor of the New York Commercial in an able review of European politics, thus briefly but forcibly sketches the character of Louis Napoleon:

A believer in his destiny rather than in his duty; following the promptings of a uniform purpose, rather than the dictates of conscience; led on by ambition, rather than patriotism; of democratic blood and democratic training, and yet of imperial tastes and despotic tendencies; weak, foolish and vacillating in adversity, but strong, firm, persistent and sagacious in prosperity: personally profligate and luxurious, yet idefatigable and unwearied in attention to state affairs; standing before the French nation as a betrayer of their confidence, and the author of a coup d'etat almost without parallel in the history of despotism, yet retaiaing a mysterious sway over their affections, and moulding them to his will; remembered by persons living in these United States as a dollarless, profligate youth—almost an outcast from the low society he chose—as imprisoned for some misdemeanor or petty rowdyism, and still indebted to the counsel who got him out of the trouble, but now greeted on his preregrinations by the embassies of proudest royalty and revelling in a profusion of imperial splendor—Louis Napoleon may well be considered as "a wonder, a marvel to men." Dynasties watch his movements with deepest concern, and the Pope himself, indebted to him for his throne and his power, declares himself ready to prove his gratitude by taking part in the approaching ceremony of his inauguration as Emperor.

Rome.—The Pope in a speech made in the Consistory, 27th September, complains of the ingratitude of New Granada in curbing the power of the Church. He threatens with his highest displeasure all prelates who obey the civil law respecting parochial examinations, and he lauds the conduct of the archbishop of Santa Fe de Bogota. Meantime the minister of New Grenada has struck his flag and left Rome.

Late Hours.—It is hard to tell, observes an historian, why all over the world, as the age became more luxurious, the hours became later. Was it the crowd of amusements that pushed on the hours gradually? or were people of fashion better pleased with the secrecy and silence of the night, when the vulgar, industrious had gone to rest? In past ages, there were few pastimes but what daylight afforded.

The way to success is to "keep on trying," the desponding should remember that time and patience converts the mulberry leaf into satin, while a handful of acorns only needs the fostering influence of a little sunshine, and a little rain, with a little ox-tugging and a little genius, to become a frigate with two rows of teeth.

WIDOW MACHREE WALTZ.

BY THOMAS COOK.

AT the solicitation of many amateurs and others, we have just published this little jem, as played by the Quadrille Bands in this city. It has already become a general favorite, and orders have been received by us from Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and elsewhere, in advance of its publication. This, like its predecessor the "Baltic Waltz," is destined to become the favorite of the Drawing Room as well as Dancing Hall; as its strict time and simplicity renders it one of the best waltzes ever written. It is now ready for sale and may be had at all the principal Music Stores in the United States and Canadas.

We annex below a copy of a letter received by Mr. Cook, previous to its publication, signed by a number of ladies of Caledonia.

Caledonia, September 27, 1852.

Thomas Cook, Esq.,

My Dear Sir:—I appeal to you in behalf of the ladies of Western New York, for the publication of a Waltz you have arranged from the song "Widow Machree."

Its popularity is already assured. I think I heard Mr. Kingsland of Geneva say, he would take one hundred copies. I venture to say from the beauty of the Waltz, there will be many hundreds taken.

May I beg consideration,

Yours respectfully,

(Signed by several ladies.)

We have also just published a beautiful Song, Duet, Trio and Chorus, entitled "Friendships Offering," inscribed to the Hon. Jessee Ketchum, of this city.
