THE NEW BANDING DISASTER.

A New York steamer put in at the work the search had been made to the body of D'Arc. Hughes, the captain of the express train, and the stranger who was on the engine with him. From papers and letters found upon the person of the body, the name is associated with Joseph Hughes, of Carnevali. The upper part of the body was badly contused. The body of "D'Arc" Hughes does not appear to be much hurt. There may be one member of the body to be taken to

New York.

These twenty-two bodies that have been recovered, and it is thought they are remains of rester.
