The Hong Kong Style Is In Style

BY HELEN HENNESSY

The Hong Kong Style is the buzzword in fashion today. It's quite understandable, to me, that the name of the place where this style is born and bred is applied to the style itself. And I'm not the only one who feels this way. It's a style that appeals to the masses, and it's here to stay.

Dear Abby

The Knot, Then Cut Strings

DEAR ABBY: Mine is ready to write. I was a bridesmaid for a friend of mine who was married last summer. We were both supposed to wear white or oatmeal. My friend's color was oatmeal. She was the knot, and I was the string. You see, I'm the one who had to cut the knot. I was supposed to cut the knot, and I did, but I did it with a pair of scissors. I'm not sure if that's the right way to do it, but I didn't want to let my friend down, so I did it. I'm glad I did, because she was happy with the result.

Sage Sayings

Women have, commonly, a very positive moral sense; and they love to be in style, and their will, in most cases, ends by settling the
