As Youth Sees It . . .

This Greater Greece Press feature is designed to give teen-agers expert guidance each year to prepare for our high school careers. Our guidance counselors help us to review our best subject fields by means of achievement tests, aptitude tests, etc.

They listen carefully to our hopes and ambitions and give us pointers as to required subjects.

We are given the liberty to take almost any subject we want to take, unless our counselors think it is beyond our limits.

I don't think we should or could be given more liberty in choosing our subjects. In fact, according to Russian high schools, we are given too much liberty.

I think we are very lucky to be given the expert guidance we have, and with this guidance we have been able to make wiser decisions about our high school courses.

GREEN THUMB

TUBEROUS BEGONIAS

Few items are more popular than tuberous rooted begonias. These items have made a strong comeback and part of this is due to their ease in growing, plus the fact that they make a good item for semi-shade, where other flowering plants will not thrive.

They can be planted outdoors anytime after the frost danger is over, and a cool shaded location is best. Hot sun cooks the leaves and ruins the blooms.

Last year many of our friends complained of bud-drop among tuberous begonias. Shedding of buds before they develop is caused either by growing plants in too small pots without sufficient plant food, also severe drying out, and by overwatering.

Abundant growth with little or no flowers is the result of too heavy shade. While they like semi-shade, it must be remembered that tuberous begonias do need at least 3 hours of sunlight. Curled and shiny foliage is a sign of too strong an exposure to the sun.

MOW THE LAWN

The way you mow may make or break your lawn. Start out with a sharp mower and keep it set for 1 1/2 inches high. Shaving your lawn will invite weeds. The mower can be either a rotary or reel type. Both will leave a grayish brown cast if the blades are dull.

Don't make the mistake of letting grass grow tall "to make strength." Newly seeded lawns should be mowed as soon as the grass is tall enough, to encourage stooing or breaking out of shoots near the base.

And don't believe the story that clippings are harmful to lawns. Let them fall where they may. You mow 36 inches of grass a season and that represents a lot of humus to go back into the soil.

Grass clippings contain four per cent nitrogen, two per cent phosphorus, and three per cent potash, the big three fertilizer ingredients, produced in sufficient quantity to be the equivalent of at least one generous feeding. Not only that, the gums and resins from rotting organic matter act as a perfect soil conditioner.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC

R. E. writes: "Our evergreens have many limbs which look dead, or scorched. The rest of the limbs are green. What should be done?"

Prune out the dead branches, feed the evergreens with foliar feeding or apply it around base. During dry spells keep the evergreens watered well and mulched, to build up the vigor. The past winter has been rough on many evergreens and non-evergreens. It'll take some time to build up their vigor but you can through feeding.

Letter to The Press

The following resolution was adopted by the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Rochester and Monroe County at its annual meeting:

"Resolved: That the YMCA of Rochester and Monroe County expresses its appreciation to the daily and weekly press throughout the county and the radio and television stations for their cooperation and interest in bringing to the attention of the general public and our own membership the program of the YMCA in Rochester and Monroe County.

Public information is an important factor in the growth of participation and support which is evidenced in our 1958 Annual Report. We recognize and sincerely appreciate the contribution of the press, radio and television in this regard."

I am happy to send this message of appreciation to you and hope you will consider it a personal 'Thank you' for your interest and support. Please share it with your associates.
