NEWS OF THE NATION

War Production Chairman Nelson, speaking in Detroit, said the U. S. will hit the "real" peak of its war production program by next March. Mr. Nelson said "our ability to produce is much greater than anyone imagined. The armament objectives as announced by President Roosevelt last winter—and which seemed at the time to be realistly realized...Our production capacity is apparently limited only by the raw materials available.

"The engineering genius of American production, when turned from peace to war, has proved a reservoir for a million "soldiers" of production factories. In American town and city shop and every other form of American enterprise there is a potential output which will reach an unprecedented peak of production soon.

National Security Act provides a method for the control of production. It is a simple way of insuring that there will be a maximum of production without interfering in any way with our democratic system of free enterprise. It recognizes that when peace returns all production will be restored to its normal level, and it gives the government the power of control only for the duration of the war. The National Security Act is a wise and necessary measure.
